CITIZENS OF THE STATE NOW TURN TO RELIEF WORK

Supplies of Food and Other Necessities Being Sent to the Flood-Swept District

THREE MORE BODIES FOUND

Family of Bruce Grant, in Chimney Rock Section, Reported Killed by Landslide

With the southeastern floods virtually over, North Carolina citizens have turned to the work of relief and supplies of food and other necessaries are flowing into devastated districts from half a dozen cities in the State. In addition Representatives Webb and Page have called the War Department's attention to conditions in the Yadkin valley and Secretary Baker has ordered a report from district engineers with a view of asking Congress for authorization to extend help to the sufferers if Federal action becomes necessary. Relief committees have been organized in several cities.

Many Facing Starvation.

Conditions are described as serious in Wilkes, Ashe and Watauga counties where many are said to be facing starvation. In North Wilkesboro a committee appointed by the mayor has sent out appeals for help. All food supplies are said to be exhausted or greatly curtailed, and with roads and railways washed away the transportation problem is serious. The crops in Wilkes and adjoining counties are said to have been completely destroyed by the high waters. Greensboro citizens Friday started a fund for relief work.

Flood victims in the Asheville district are being provided with food from that city and wagons and motor trucks are leaving Charlotte at frequent intervals with supplies. Rutherfordton has sent wagon trains and packhorses over the mountains with food for 350 persons in the Chimney Rock and Bat Cave section. About one hundred tourists and summer vacationists are among those penned up in the hills. Appeals for outside help have been sent out from Rutherfordton.

Bodies of Two Victims.

Two additional bodies were recovered from the Catawba river Friday near Belmont, leaving six of the 20 who went down with the Southern Railway bridge Sunday unaccounted for. It is believed that the death list from the flood will be less than 100.

Reports Friday from the Chimney Rock section told of the killing of the family of Bruce Grant by a landslide down Bald mountain.

The armies of repair men sent to the flooded section are making rapid progress and prospects are that early next week normal schedules will be resumed on the main lines of the railroads affected. Various branch lines, however, will be out of commission much longer.

NORMAL CONDITIONS AROUND ASHEVILLE BEING RESTORED.

Asheville, N. C., July 21.—The close of the fifth day since the disastrous floods found conditions rapidly approaching normal in this section where repair work was being rushed, and relief measures carried out. Homeless victims of the high waters have been provided with food, shelter and colthes, although, according to reports, conditions are not so favorable in isolated sections of North Carolina.

Active work was in progress around here today on several large plants damaged by the flood. The river front, a mile in length, was the only portion of Asheville to suffer from the flood and the work of restoration and salvage was going forward there rapidly. Business men and manufacturers affected continued to decrease their estimates of loss.

Railroad repair work is well under way and it was officially announced that by Wednesday train service would be resumed between Asheville and Spartanburg and that probably by Monday a line would be in operation from here to Hendersonville.

The electric railway line from Asheville to Weaverville, a nearby town, resumed operations tonight and it was said local street cars which have been tied up would be in full operation within a week or ten days. Electric lights also were turned on in the residence section late today, and the lights in the business section were epected to be turned on shortly. Gas will be available for Asheville by Monday, it was said.

Late reports reaching here from the villages of Chimney Rock and Bat Cave said food supplies had been received in that section. It was said there were no deaths among summer residents in that section as far as could be learned.

THREE MORE BODIES ARE GIVEN UP BY THE CATAWBA

Charlotte, N. C., July 21.—The body of C. S. Barbee, section foreman, of Charlotte, was recovered from the Catawba river, below Belmont, late this afternoon and brought to Charlotte tonight, being the fourth found of those drowned by the collapse of the Southern Railway Belmont bridge Sunday afternoon. Early today the body of Sloan Adams, a negro laborer, also of Charlotte, had been found near Fort Mill, S. C. One white man and five negroes still are unaccounted for.

The body of William Brotherton, Jr., drowned while attempting to salvage cotton from the Monbo Mills in the Catawba river flood was recovered late today near where he went down.

NAVAL BILL PASSED BY SENATE 71 TO 8

Carries Appropriation of $315,826,843, or $45,857,588 More Than House Provided

157 VESSELS TO BE BUILT

Measure Will Be Sent at Once to Conference Between the Two Houses, Where a Long Fight is Expected.

Washington, July 21.—The Naval Appropriation bill, with a three year building plan, including the immediate construction of four dreadnaughts, four great battle cruisers, and 58 other craft, passed the Senate late today by a vote of 71 to 8. It carries $315,826,843, or $45,857,588 more than the total as the measure passed the House.

Many proposals to curtail the enormous building increases written into the measure by the Senate Naval committee were defeated overwhelmingly, and as soon as final passage was announced the Senate voted to insist on its amendments and send the bill at once to conference. The House is expected to insist upon its building programme and a long struggle is in prospect before agreement is reached.

Two Democrats Oppose Bill.

Two Democrats, Senators Thomas and Vardaman, and six Republicans, Senators Clapp, Curtis, Gronna, LaFollette, Norris and Works, voted against the bill which has had the support of leaders of both parties during the week of debate that preceded passage.

A seven hour speech by Senator LaFollette against the measure and a clash between Senators Reed and Oliver over the proposal to print as a public document the Bethlehem Steel Company's arguments against a government amor plant delayed the final vote. The Bethlehem's arguments were ordered printed by unanimous consent during Senator Reed's absence from the Senate chamber. On his return he vainly sought re-consideration, charging that Senator Oliver, as an owner of steel stock, had voted money into his own pocket by supporting the proposal.

Senators Tillman, Swanson and Lodge were appointed conferees on the bill. The House conferees will be chosen Tuesday and daily sessions probably will be held thereafter by the conference committee.

Three Year Programme.

Construction of 157 vessels, including sixteen capital fighting ships, within three years at an estimated cost of $588,180,576, is contemplated in the Senate programme, the largest ever proposed in Congress. Of the total appropriations in the bill $110, 726,160 is for the first year's building expenses.

As it passed the House the measure made no provision for a continuing building programme and authorized only 72 ships, including five battle cruisers and no dreadnaughts.

Administration leaders regard it as practically certain that in the conferences between the two houses, at least four battle cruisers and two dreadnaughts to be contracted for at once will be agreed upon.

Two Programmes Compared.

An analysis of the two building programmes shows the following from

LULL IN ATTACKS OF ANGLO-FRENCH FORCES

Attacks on Both Sides of Somme Thursday Fruitless

Russians Driving the Austro-Germans Toward Northern Galician Border—Berlin and Vienna Admit Withdrawal.

The intensity of the British and French attacks against the German front north and south of the Somme river in northern France appears to have lessened greatly, according to the latest official statements. London declared a lull has set in on the British front and the Paris official statement of Friday mentions no activity along the whole front from north of the Somme to Switzerland.

In the salient of the Liepsic redoubt the Germans entered the lines held by General Haig's forces, but were ejected subsequently, London asserts.

The Anglo-French attacks north and south af the Somme on Thursday were fruitless, according to Berlin, except on a two mile front south of Hardecourt, where the Germans retired from first to second line trenches about 800 kilometers in the rear. The attack, Berlin asserts, was preceded by a violent artillery fire of more than 27 miles and was participated in by more than 200,000 men.

North of LaBassee an attack Wednesday by the British in the region of Fromelles resulted disastrously for them, Berlin says, the Britishers losing more than 2,000 men killed and nearly 500 prisoners.

Floods on the Dneister preventing any advance further into Galicia from the south and east for the time being, the Russians are driving in the Austro-Germans toward the northern Galician border, below Vladimir-Volynski. Both Berlin and Vienna admit the retirement of part of General Von Lin-

Germans in Att[ack] Fromelles Wednesda[y] Captured Nea[rly] Prisoners

ADMIT HARDECOURT LOSS

Enemy Penetrated German First Line Trenches South of Village—Also Entered Salient at Varmandovillers Wood

Berlin, via London, July 21.—An attack by British forces against the Germans at Fromelles, north of La Bassee, on Wednesday resulted in the loss by the attackers of more than 2,000 men killed and nearly 500 men taken prisoner, according to statement given out by the war office today.

The statement admits that the German line along a front of about three kilometers (two miles) south of Hardecourt into its second trenches, 200 meters es into its secon dtrenches, 200 meters in the rear. Enemy forces, the statement says, penetrated into the German salient at the wood of Vermandovillers.

The Official Statement.

"An attack by the English in the region of Fromelles, on Wednesday was executed, we have established, by two strong divisions. The brave Bavarian division, before whose front the attack took place, counted on the ground in front of them more than 2,000 enemy killed and brought in hitherto 481 prisoners, including 10 officers, and 16 machine guns.

"On both sides of the Somme the enemy yesterday, as was expected, prepared to deliver a main blow, but it failed. After the strongest fire preparation over a front of about forty kilometers (about 27 miles), attacks were made from south of Fuzieres to west of Vermandovillers. Hore than 17 divisions, with more than 200,000 men, participated in the attacks.

"The result for the enemy is that the first line of the German division along a front of about three kilometers south of Hardecourt, was pressed back from its foremost trenches into the next trenches, lying eight hundred meters behind, and enemy divisions penetrated into the salient of the little wood of Vermandovillers.

Extraordinary Losses.

"On the entire remaining front the wild onsets broke to pieces against the death-defying loyalty of our troops, with extraordinary losses for the enemy. Up to the present 17 officers and 1,200 men have been captured.

"On the remainder of the front there is nothing special to report. The artillery and mine throwing activity south of LaBassee canal and northwest of Lens as well as in the Argonne and on both sides of the Meuse, increased at intervals. North of Venderesse, in the Aisne region, small French detachments advanced after an explosion, which was without result, but were repulsed and the crater was occupied by us.

"An an air battle a hostile arcoplane was shot down and shattered south of Pozieres and another northeast of Bahaume fell into our hands.

On the Russian Front

"Eastern theatre—South of Riga the enemy made only a weak attack, which was nipped in the bud. Russian attempts to cross the Dvina on both sides of Friedrichstadt were prevented. North of Deveten a small detachment reached the west bank.

"Northeast of Smorgon our advanced pickets gave way before superior hostile attacks.

"Army group of Prince Leopold, of Bavaria: The situation is unchanged.

"Army group of General Linsingen: After Russian attacks between Werben and Korsow had been brought to a standstill, the curve jutting out toward Werben was withdrawn in the face of an expected envolving attack.

"Army group of General Count Von Bothmer: Apart from small advance encounters there is nothing to report.

"Balkan theatre: There is nothing to report."

Contradicts British Statement.

Then follows a contradiction of the British official communication of Thursday, sent by the Poldhu wireless, that one battalion of the "119th" regiment, consisting of 1,100 men, lost 980 men and two other battalions of the same regiment each more than half their effective strength.

"With the purpose of stigmatizing such reports and tranquilizing the people at home," the German communication continues, "it may be remarked

HANLY NAMED TO LEAD PROHIBITION NATIONAL TICKET

Former Governor of Indiana is Nominated for President Over William Sulzer

GIVEN BIG DEMONSTRATION

Dr. Ira D. Landrith, of Nashville, is Unanimously Nominated for Vice President

St. Paul, Minn., July 21.—The prohibition National Convention, which has been in session since Wednesday morning, adjourned sine die at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, after nominating J. Frank Hanly, former governor of Indiana, as candidate for President of the United States and Dr. Lra D. Landrith, of Nashville, candidate for vice president. Dr. Landrith's nomination was made unanimous after the other vice presidential candidates had withdrawn.

Mr. Hanly's nomination came on the first ballot and followed a number of hurried conferences between advocates of the candidacy of William Sulzer, former governor of New York, and several brief demonstrations in the latter's behalf, which, however, were offset by the outbursts of enthusiasm that followed every mention of Mr. Hanly's name.

Hanly Has Big Lead.

Mr. Hanly received 440 votes as against 181 for Mr. Sulzer. Finley C. Hendrickson, of Cumberland, Md., received 51 votes; James Gilbert Mason, of New Jersey, 10; W. P. F. Ferguson, of Pennsylvania, 4; Sumner W. Hays, Indiana, 2, and Henry Ford, Detroit, 1. A motion to make Mr. Hanly's nomination unanimous was defeated when objections were offered by Eugene W. Chaffin, of Arizona, and a score of other delegates.

After the nomination of Dr. Landrith, the assembly arose, sang the doxology, and ended a six-hour session, marking the close of the three-day convention.

Platform Adopted.

The party platform with but one change in the draft presented by the resolutions committee—the insertion of a plank declaring in favor of the initiative, referendum and recall—was adopted early in the day's session.

The delegates were in a cheerful mood when the time for nominating speeches grew near, and as Sumner W. Hays, of Indiana, concluded his speech nominating Mr. Hanly, after announcing his own withdrawal from the race, the Indiana delegation marched to the platform, shouting and singing. Other state delegations, followed and a procession soon extended half way around the hall.

Hats, coats and banners were hurled in the air during the 12-minute demonstration.

Chairman Robert Patton, of Springfield, then recognized Eugene Chaffin, who nominated Mr. Sulzer. A four-minute demonstration followed. Several speakers asserted that Sulver's nomination would mean the election of a Prohibition President and abolition of intoxicating liquors in this country. Sulzer forces made numerous efforts to evoke a popular demonstration, but each time were howled down by the Hanley adherents.

The turning point in the proceedings in the opinion of Sulzer leaders, came during the nominating speeches when the New York delegation announced

ALLIED WARSHIPS OFF COAST DRAW IN CLOSER

They Are Keeping Close Watch Off the Virginia Capes

There Are at Least Two of the Vessels, Believed to Be British, and Possibly a Third, Believed to Be French.

Norfolk, Va., July 21.—Allied warships which have been lying off the entrance to Cape Henry for several days in anticipation of a dash by the Deutschland, German merchantman submarine, drew in closer to the three mile limit today and began a rigid patrol of the waters. Throughout the day they moved up and down a lane of perhaps 15 miles, meeting frequently directly off the bay entrance, pausing a few moments as if exchanging notes and then resuming their vigil.

The names, nationalities, and exact numbers of the ships are unknown here. No more than two of them have been seen together at one time but a persistent report is that a third ship is lying about 30 miles out and that at times it relieves one of the patrols. The general opinion is that two of the ships are British and the other French. The ships believed to be British are darker than the third.

None of the ships carries a flag nor bears a name, incoming vessels report. Few vessels, however, have been near them.

Entrance to the capes is made from

ROYSTER COMPANY MOVES DISMISSAL

Asks Permission to Withdraw Complaint and End Fertilizer Rate Fight

VICTORY FOR N. CAROLINA

Intrastate Rates on Fertilizers in North Carolina Will Remain as They Are Under the Justice Rate Act.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Norfolk, Va., July 21.—The North Carolina Corporation Commission won another victory here today, and perhaps the most complete victory in its experience with freight rate controversies with the Virginia cities. The entire day yesterday was spent in presenting evidence to show that the intra-state rate on fertilizer in North Carolina is reasonable and that the former order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, giving the North Carolina railroad lines authority to increase their North Carolina intrastate rate on fertilizer 20 cents per ton should be revoked.

The evidence presented in support of the North Carolina rates and the showing made that these rates do not constitute an undue discrimination against Virginia manufacturers was so overwhelming that when the hearing was resumed this morning for evidence in rebuttal. Mr. Collins, representing the complainant, the F. S. Royster Guano Co., asked permission to withdraw his complaint and have the proceeding dismissed, and this notwithstanding the fact that upon the former hearing the Interstate Commerce Commission had sustained his complaint of discrimination and ordered the railroad companies to remove it, leaving to their option whether this would be done by reducing the interstate rate or by raising the North Carolina intrastate rate. The Corporation Commission then filed petition of intervention and asked for further hearing which was had here yesterday and today with result as stated.

The attorney for the Royster Guano Company made the following statement to the examiner this morning:

"As attorney for the F. S. Royster Guano Company, complainant in this proceeding, I wish again to state the record clearly shows complainants have always contended that the present North Carolina intra-state mileage scale is not below fertilizer rates for like distances in other parts of the South, and as complainant desires to secure the establishment of an interstate mileage scale of rates on commercial fertilizers applicable from Norfolk, Va., to points in the State of North Carolina that does not exceed the present North Carolina intrastate mileage scale of rates and there is a possibility that this proceeding may not attain that end, I now move to be allowed to dismiss this case."

The examiner had no authority to dismiss the complaint, even upon complainant's request, so the record as now made up goes to the commission at Washington for its conclusion, but it is taken as a matter of course that the petition will be dismissed.

If the former order of the commission had stood, it would have meant an increase in freight on fertilizer in North Carolina of $160,000 per year. The case was handled by E. L. Travis and George P. Pell, of the commission, and Cameron Morrison, of Charlotte.

Evidence was presented by Dr. H. Q. Alexander, of Charlotte; J. L. Graham, Winston, W. G. Womble, rate clerk of the commission; H. W. B. Glover, of Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company; J. R. Chamberlain, Caraleigh Fertiliser Company, Raleigh, and J. G. McCormick, Acme Manufacturing Co., Wilmington.

MR. McCORMICK, OF WILMINGTON, RETURNS; TELLS OF HEARING

Mr. J. G. McCormick, secretary-treasurer of the Acme Manufacturing Company, of this city, who returned yesterday from Norfolk where he attended the re-hearing of what is known as the Royster fertilizer rate case, made the following statement of what took place

DISCUSS FOREIGN COTTON EXPORTS

Instructive Addresses Feature Meeting of North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers

MAYOR WELCOMES VISITORS

Sympathy Extended Flood Swept Section of State by Mill Men in Convention at Wrightsville Beach—Programme.

The possibilities that foreign countries, particularly those of South America, offer for exporting cotton goods was the theme of several very interesting and instructive addresses before the North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association at the opening session of its tenth annual convention at the Seashore hotel at Wrightsville Beach yesterday afternoon. Many of the members of the association have been prevented from attending the convention because of the devastations wrought by the floods in the Western part of the State last week and it was unanimously voted yesterday afternoon that the secretary of the organization extend to the absent ones the sympathy of the association in this period of distress.

In spite of the unusual conditions obtaining in the center of the textile center of North Carolina because of the rains last week, there were a hundred or more manufacturers in attendance yesterday when Col. Alf. A. Thompson, of Raleigh, president of the association, called the convention to order. Following the invocation by Rev. Dr. A. D. McClure, of Wilmington, Mayor Parker Quince Moore welcomed the visitors in an eloquent address in which he paid tribute to the splendid work that the business men and manufacturers of North Carolina are doing.

Denounces Keating Bill.

Mr. W. A. Erwin, of Durham, a prominent cotton manufacturer, responded to the address, expressing sincere appreciation for the cordial welcome and declaring that the men of the South who can always be depended upon are those behind the spindle and those behind the loom, who have never been carried away by any "isms."

An iniquitous and unholy piece of legislation was the way Mr. Erwin characterized the Keating Child Labor bill, now before Congress. "The man of men and in my humble opinion the greatest man in all the world today," he declared amidst applause, "is President Wilson and I believe that if he were correctly informed, he would go before the Senate and demand that this iniquitous, unholy bill not be made a law."

Following the president's address by Colonel Thompson and the report of Secretary Hudson C. Millar, the convention immediately took up the hearing of the addresses by those who had been invited to speak. Dr. W. S. Rankin, secretary of the State Board of Health, made a very practical address on "Industrial Hygiene and Dividends," and Mr. W. A. Graham Clark, commercial agent of the United States Foreign Department, who is a son of Justice Walter Clark of North Carolina, discussed in an able manner the important subject of "World Markets

ELABORATE BALL ENDS FIREMEN'S FESTIVITIES

President McNeill Leads a Number of the Dances

Tournament Contests Yesterday the Most Exciting of the Week of Annual Convention in Raleigh—Winners and Scores

(Special Star Telegram).

Raleigh, N. C., July 21.—The State Firemen's Convention and Tournament closed tonight with an elaborate ball given at the city auditorium and attended by the visiting fireman, their ladies and very many local dancers and spectators. President James D. McNeill led a number of the dances and the affair was a most fitting climax for the annual meet.

The final day was given over to tournament contests, morning and afternoon, that were the most exciting of the week. In the forenoon races Chapel Hill company won the grab reel race, making a score of 17 seconds. Other scores were: Concord 17 1-5, East Spencer 22, Winston-Salem nothing, Spencer Shops nothing, Kannapolis nothing.

In the hand reel race Spencer Shops was winner to 23 1-2 seconds, Concord 24, Winston-Salem 24 1-5, Chapel Hill nothing, Kannapolis nothing, East Spencer nothing.

In the horse hose wagon contest this afternoon, Morehead City No. 1 was winner in 28 seconds, having had to race off a tie of the same score with

Charlotte, N. C., July 21.—The entire family of Bruce Grant in the Chimney Rock region is reported to have been killed last night by a landslide down Bald mountain, wrecking Grant's house.

MANY PEOPLE IN THREE COUNTIES FACE STARVATION

Food Either Exhausted or Growing Short in Parts of Wilkes, Ashe and Watauga

APPEAL FOR OUTSIDE AID

Trains May Not Run Over North Wilkesboro Branch of Southern for Two Months

Greensboro, N. C., July 21.—Word reached here today from North Wilkesboro that many people in Wilkes, Ashe and Watauga counties were destitute and facing starvation as a result of the flood and appeals were made for outside help. In North Wilkesboro a relief committee has been appointed by Mayor Spainhour and this committee is sending out a formal appeal for aid.

All food supplies are either exhausted or short and with roads and railroads wased away the transportation problem is serious. Taylorsville is the nearest railroad point to North Wilkesboro where supplies may be sent. It is 21 miles over a mountain road between the two places.

Moravian Falls is without flour and corn and other points in that section face a similar situation. The food supply at Wilkesboro is sufficient for only a few days.

General Superintendent Simpson, of the Southern Railway, who walked up the Southern line 65 miles to North Wilkesboro, is reported as saying it would be fully sixty-five days before a train could be run into that place.

Reports of complete loss of crops in Wilkes and adjoining counties continue to come in from remote sections and conditions are revealed even worse than at first reported. Absolute destitution exists and in many cases starvation is imminent.

In Greensboro a relief fund for the flood sufferers was started late today and tonight nearly $100 had been contributed.

OFFERS $1,500 IF NEEDED TO AID FLOOD SUFFERERS

Richmond, Va., July 21.—S. T. Morgan, president of the Virginia Carolina Chemical Company, today sent telegrams to Governor Locke Craig, of North Carolina, authorizing him, if there is any real suffering and need for outside contributions for flood sufferers in North Carolina, to draw on him for $500 personally and $500 for the company. He also sent a telegram to Governor Richard I. Manning, of South Carolina, offering $500 on behalf of the company, in cases of need in that State.

WAGON TRAINS AND PACK HORSES LEAVE WITH FOOD

Rutherfordton, N. C., July 21.—Rutherfordton has sent wagon trains and pack horses over the mountains with food for 350 persons in Chimney Rock and Bat Cave section. Dr. F. E. Washburn, of the State Board of Health, just from that section, reached Shelby today and reported the food situation serious. A Rutherfordton mass meeting has applied for outside aid to relieve distress in Rutherford county, in which Chimney Rock and Bat Cave are situated. About 100 tourists and summer vacationists are among those penned up in the hills. Though several have automobiles, they are unable to get out, as a branch of Broad river has altered its course, running for miles down the Asheville-Charlotte highway.

GOVERNOR CRAIG ABLE TO TALK TO RALEIGH ONCE MORE

Raleigh, N. C., July 21.—For the first time since the terrible floods in Western Carolina there was direct telephone communication today between Governor Craig, at his summer home in Asheville, and his executive offices here. Early in the afternoon the Governor talked for some time with his private secretary with reference to affairs in the executive offices, which have, all agree, been admirably handled by Miss May F. Jones as private secretary, while the Governor had been floodbound in Asheville.

He expects to come to Raleigh just as soon as travel can be safely resumed.

FLOOD DAMAGE AT MARSHALL WILL NOT BE OVER $200,000

Asheville, N. C., July 21.—First definite news of damage at Marshall, Madison county, were brought here tonight by J. C. Ramsey, an attorney of Marshall, who said the total flood damage at that place would not exceed $200,000. Five large bridges across the French Broad river in various sections of Madison county were destroyed, according to Ramsey, who said 12 frame dwellings on the river front at Marshall were washed away and ten others severely damaged. Seven business houses, he said, were virtually destroyed and 12 were damaged 50 per cent. Stocks in others were damaged beyond recovery, he added. All the flood sufferers are being taken care of by the town authorities, the attorney said.

MR. AND MRS. WILSON HOSTS

Postmasters Entertained at Garden Party at the White House.

Washington, July 21.—A garden party this afternoon at the White House, with the President and Mrs. Wilson as hosts, closed the nineteenth annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters. At a final business session resolutions recommending the Wilson administration and urging postal reforms were adopted without change as presented by the resolutions committee.

GREAT BRITAIN IS ASKED TO EXPLAIN

Inquiries Made as to Why Certain American Business Firms Have Been Blacklisted

TO WAGE A STRONG FIGHT

Representatives of Fifty of the Firms Black-Listed Hold Secret Meeting and Outline a Course of Action.

Washington, July 21.—Inquiries as to why certain business concerns in the United States have been placed on a black-list under Great Britain's "trading with the enemy act" were directed to the British government by the State Department today through both the British embassy here and Ambassador Page at London.

Information is sought specifically regarding a number of firms, the names of which have not been made public by the department. There is no discussion of principle in the inquiry, that matter being left for attention after the American government is fully informed on the facts.

BLACK-LISTED FIRMS ARE TO FIGHT BRITISH ACTION.

New York, July 21.—A nation-wide movement to "arouse business men of the United States to the significance of the British government's action" in blacklisting American firms was begun here today at a conference of about 50 members of firms which appear on the lists.

Leopold Zimmerman, head of the banking firm of Zimmerman & Forshay, presided. The conference lasted three hours, during which it was decided to appoint a committee of five to plan methods of procedure. The members of this committee, it is said, will be announced next Monday.

One of the first things the committee will do, it was said tonight, will be to go to Washington to see President Wilson. On the result of the conference with the President, it was said, will depend the future course of the committee, in regard to tentative plans discussed at the meeting today. There was talk at the conference today of holding mass meetings in New York and other large cities to put before the public what was described as the "far-reaching and injurious effect the boycott will have on American commerce."

Maurice Blumenthal, an attorney engaged to represent the committee, said tonight he did not think, however, it would be necessary to hold mass meetings. Speaking of the plans as outlined at the meeting today Blumenthal said tonight:

"We will have co-operation as far west as California. The indications are that we will receive hearty and cordial support from citizens throughout the country, who are not on the blacklist and who are not connected with the black-listed firms in the slightest degree."

"All who attended the meeting today are on the black list," he added. "Many had been under the British ban for over a year. Everybody present was an American citizen and a few are native-born Americans. This campaign to be waged over the land to rouse the people to the injustice of the black list has nothing whatever to do with the hyphen—the hyphen has no connection with this matter at all."

Washington, July 21—All restrictions upon the movement of exports into Mexico, except munitions of war and machinery for their manufacture, were removed today by order of the Treasury Department.

singen's forces from the region of the confluence of the Styr and Lipa rivers to Berestechk, north of Brody.

Petrograd asserts the retirement of the Austro-Germans was the result of an impetuous attack, in which more than 1,600 prisoners were taken. Berlin and Vienna say the withdrawal was made in expectation of an enveloping movement.

In addition to capturing Gumuskhaner, forty miles northwest of Baiburt, the Russian armies in Turkish Armenia are advancing in other sectors.

Artillery fighting appears to occupy the opposing forces on the Austro-Italian front generally. Rome, however, reports the capture of further trenches on Monte Maio.

GERMANS ENTER BRITISH FIRST TRENCHES BUT ARE DRIVEN OUT

London, July 22.—The Germans, in an attack on the British on the northern edgeg of the Leipsic salient Friday resulted in occupying British front trenches but later were driven out, according to the British official communication issued at midnight. Elsewhere along the British front comparative calm prevailed. The statement says:

"Except for local encounters there has been a comparative lull in the main battle area today (Friday) and there has been no change in the situation since the last report.

"The enemy made a bombing attack on the north edge of our position in the Liepsic salient and succeeded at one point in entering our front trenches, but at once was driven out.

"Taking advantage of the fine weather, the oyal Flying Corps continued thier bombing operations against points of military importance with successful results.

"The hostole aircraft were inactive until evening, when a good deal of fighting took place behind the German lines. One of our offensive patrols encountered 11 German machines, and as a result three German machines were shot down, one bursting into flames.

"Another encounter between four of our machines and six of the enemy lasted 45 minutes. One Fokker was then shot down and another badly damaged. The remainder fled.

"During other air combats a fifth German machine was forced to the ground. Our total loss during the day was one machine.

"It now has been established that the enemy's assault on July 18 on the Delville wood area over a front of 2,000 yards and was made by at least 13 batdivisions. The enemy's losses were corresponding great."

VILLA REPORTED AS BEING PURSUED BY GENERAL GARCIA

Said to be Encamped 25 Miles South og Chihuahua-Durango Border.

El Paso, Texas, July 21.—Villa with his band is encamped at Inde, 35 miles south of the Chihuahua-Durango border, according to a private dispatch received here. The dispatch continued that on his retreat from Parral, after being defeated by General Garcia ten days ago, the bandit chieftain, stopped at a small ranch near Cuevas where he murdered Garcia's only son and his brother-in-law. As a result Garcia is said to have taken the "blood oath" and is pursuing the bandits with 100 cavalrymen in co-operation with the command of General Matias Ramos, whose uncle was killed in a recent clash with the Villistas.

A new story brought here by an American from Parral was that Major Thompkins, commanding the detachment of American cavalry that was fired on by Carranza troops in Parral in April, was within 24 hours march of the bandit chief. Villa, wounded and hauled about in a wagon accompanied by less than 50 men was then just a few miles south of the Las Nieves road.

RUSSIAN PRESSURE FORCES THE AUSTRIANS TO WITHDRAW

Vienna, via London, July 21.—Under the pressure of attacks by the Russians, the Austro-Hungarian forces in the region of the Styr and Lipa rivers, north of the Galician border, have been forced to withdraw to new positions in the region of Berestehk, says an official statement issued by the war office today.

Secretary of Cotton Manufacturers' Association

The need of a campaign of publicity to acquaint the people of the country with actual conditions in the textile centers of the South was advocated by Mr. Hudson C. Millar, of Charlotte, in his annual report as secretary and treasurer at the convention of the North Carolina cotton mill men at Wrightsville Beach yesterday afternoon. Mr. Millar is a "live wire" and has served the association very capably.

CARRANZA'S PLAN MAY BE ACCEPTED

Announcement of Course in Mexican Negotiations Expected Today or Next Week

COMMISSION IS PROPOSED

While Carranza's Plan May be Accepted, It is Indicated President Desires Discussion of Much Broader Scope.

Washington, July 21.—Official announcement of the course to be followed in seeking a peaceful solution of the Mexican border problems, probably will be made either tomorrow or early next week. It appeared certain tonight that the Washington government was prepared to accept the commission plan proposed by General Carranza in his note of July 11, made public yesterday in Mexico City but there are indications that President Wilson would prefer a more far-reaching discussion than this collection.

Another Conference Held.

Acting Secretary Polk conferred again with Eliseo Arredondo, General Carranza's ambassador, but the conferees had no announcement to make. Apparently acceptance of the commission plan is awaiting General Carranza's reply to amendments proposed by the Washington government to his suggestion, the nature of which has not been revealed.

Mr. Polk is keeping both President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, now absent on vacation, advised of each step taken.

The note of July 11, as published in Mexico City, would limit the proposed commission to discussion of three specific points:

Discussion as Proposed.

Withdrawal of American troops from Mexico; arrangement of a reciprocal agreement under which the troops of either government might cross the border in pursuit of bandits; and investigation of the bandit raids on American towns to determine what interests promoted them in an effort to force intervention.

There have been intimations that President Wilson hoped much greater results could be accomplished toward restoration of tranquility and stable government in Mexico than this limited field would permit. For that reason it was inferred that the present effort of Mr. Polk probably was directed toward widening the scope of the commission's activities, and that General Carranza's answer on this suggestion must be received before a final decision could be reached.

Who Will be Commissioners?

Gossip as to the probable American membership of the commission indicated that men of high position and ability, whose names are known internationally, would be elected to represent the United States in order to assure General Carranza that the best thought of the nation would be given to the task.

In some quarters it was reported tonight that Chief Justice White, Major General Goethals and Frederick Lehman, former solicitor general and a member of the A. B. C. mediation conference at Niagara Falls had been considered. The name of Justice Brandeis also was mentioned.

It appears certain that Luis Caberera, Mexican minister of finance, will head the Mexican commission. Mentioned as his probable associates are men of great prominence in Mexican economic life.

The Mexican outline of subjects to be discussed by the commissioners contained no new proposal except that the origin of the border raids be investigated.

Sinister Influences at Work.

Secretary Lansing and other officials have made no secret of their belief that sinister influences have been striving persistently to embroil the two nations in war. President Wilson has repeatedly referred to these influences in public utterances and there is no reason to believe that the United States would not welcome an investigation of the origin of the border raids.

HANLY NAMED TO LEAD PROHIBITION NATIONAL TICKET

that it was ready to "stand as a unit behind the convention's nominee."

Francis E. Baldwin, of the New York delegation, arose and seconded the nomination of Mr. Hanly. The delegation cast 37 votes for Hanly and 13 for Sulzer.

After the roll call a number of states changed their votes and in most cases increased Hanly's total.

"Steam Roller Victory"

Mr. Sulzer, who had remained at his hotel, later characterized the convention's action as a "steam roller victory" but added:

"As I was not a candidate for the nomination, I am not disappointed that it has gone to Mr. Hanly."

The candidacy of Mr. Hendrickson was reported to have gained considerable eleventh hour strength, but aside from endorsement of the of the Maryland delegation, it was given little support on the convention flood.

A resolution was adopted by the convention but not incorporated in the platfor mfavoring freedom in the practice of Christian Science and Chiropractics.

AUSTRIANS SUFFER DEFEAT BY THE RUSSIAN FORCES

Petrograd, via London, July 21.—Russian troops, advancing toward the northern Galician border, have defeated the Austro-Hungarians in the region of the confluence of the Styr and Lipa rivers and have captured more than 1,600 prisoners, says the official statement issued today. The Austrians retired to the heights near the town of Berestehk.

two sides and never directly into the center. The allied ships have taken advantage of this situation, and whenever a vessel approaches they draw together directly off the entrance and thus avoid ingoing traffic.

From German sources today came expressions of confidence, said to have been based on authoritative information, that the Deutschland will move down the bay from Baltimore either tomorrow or Sunday night, to a point near Cape Henry and wait there a day or two for an opportunity to dash out into the Atlantic. These same sources insist that the Bremen, another submersible, will come into the capes soon after the Deutschland leaves, and that it is solely to permit the Bremen to draw near to American waters that the Deutschland is delaying her departure. Neither fear of the allied ships nor a desire to take on gold has anything to do with the delay, it is declared.

A rumor that German submarines active as a convoy to the Deutschland on her trip to America and are waiting a a short distance out in the Atlantic to return with her also is current. It does not appear to have strong foundation, however.

It is generally believed that the Deutschland will not make her dash until the weather becomes more unsettled, and this may delay her departure several days. All signs of the storm that swept up the coast this week, has passed and the stars are shining tonight.

MEET AT ATLANTA IN 1917

Work of the Convention of Rotary Clubs is Concluded.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 21.—Atlanta, Ga., was selected as the convention city in May, 1917, of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, here late today by the new and retiring officers empowered to make the selection. C. R. Perry, of Chicago, was relected secretary.

Philip I. Kellar, of Chicago, was rechosen managing editor of the Rotarian, official organ of the Rotary Clubs, and Frank R. Jennings, also of Chicago, was again selected as advertising manager. This concluded the work of the international convention, which had been in session here since last Monday.

Washington, July 21.—Acting Secretary Polk announced today that he had made formal inquiry of France and Great Britain as to why no reply had been received to the last American note regarding interference with neutral mails and had asked for a response at the earliest possible moment.

Headache Every Morning, Can't Eat, Liver Not Activg?

A Wineglassful of Tolla Water Will Start Your Liver and Stop Your Headache in Half an Hour

Morning headaches come from clogged livers. The bile tubes are choked and force the bile into the blood until the whole system becomes poisoned, which makes the appetite poor, especially at breakfast.

Get a 15-cent bottle of Tollo Water from the drug store and take about a third of a tumblerful in a glass of plain water before breakfast. In thirty minutes it will start the liver acting freely, your headache will be relieved at once, because it flushes out the bile, really bathes the liver, leaving it clean and fresh. Then you can eat breakfast and really enjoy it, and there won't be any gas or discomfort afterwards.

Concentrated Tollo Water comes from Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky health resort. It does not act by irritation, like calomel and other strong drugs that weaken the system, but by dissolving the obstructions and bathing the liver as nature requires. To remove the bile that has been absorbed into the blood you should take a wineglassful every morning for several days. It will clear up the skin, your tongue will lose its furry coat and your natural healthy color will return. Then an occasional glass before breakfast will keep your liver clean, your bowels regular and your appetite good. Sold by D. A. Elvington and other Druggists.

ROCKY MOUNT AND NEWPORT NEWS TIE FOUR TO FOUR

Rocky Mount, N. C., July 21.—With each club twice in the lead and three times losing that lead, darkness wound up today's game four and four and neither club could claim an advantage in a well played and hotly contested game between the league leaders and the runners up. Gray clouds threatened the game throughout and an hour's wait was attendant at the third inning when a shower lasted for twenty minutes and then twice as long was required to clean the playing field of the water to start play. A new Brown started the game for the locals and was besting Ray, his opponent, until the opening of the eighth when the flinger lost the plate and he was relieved in favor of Applegate.

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS ARE BROKEN AT NORTH RANDALL

Cleveland, O., July 21.—All season's and two world's records were broken in the free-for-all pace at the last of the North Randall grand circuit races in which Single G. created a sensation after Russell Boy had won the opening heat at 2:00 1-4 by coming on and nosing out Murphy's pacer in the second heat, duplicating the time of the first mile and then taking the race by tramping the third heat in 2:01 1-4.

It was easily the greatest speed exhibition in the history of the Grand Circuit and in only the special match races between Durectum I., and William was the time even approached.

The world's records were: The fastest three heats ever paced, the three heats averaging 2:00 92-100. The fastest second and third heats ever paced by the same horse averaging 2:01.

The season's record: Fastest first heat, 2:00 1-4; fastest second heat, 2:00 1-4; fastest third heat 2:01 1-4, fastest three heat race, averaging 2:00 92-100.

The race fully lived up to early predictions and the only reason that the two minute notch was not beaten was that Murphy took back and saved Russell Boy at the finish of the first heat and Curt Gosnell did the same with Single G., in the second mile. Otherwise both miles would have been below the two minute notch. Single G. crowned himself as one of the greatest pacing machines in the history of the harness sport.

PARKTON WINS ANOTHER FROM THE FAYETTEVILLE KILTIES

Parkton, N. C., July 21.—Parkton won the second game of the second half of the season from Fayetteville this afternoon, 6 to 1, knocking Rivers off the mound in the third. Zeb McMillan hit for two bags and a home run in four times up and fielder brilliantly at second. Galloway was again the sensation, making what looked to be impossible stops and throws. Rogers and Fisher both had Fayetteville at their mercy throughout.

at Thursday's proceedings before Examiner Watkins, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which throws additional light on the case:

This was a re-hearing of a case before the commission in which the Royster Guano Company had asked the commission to compel the railroads to establish the same rates on shipments of fertilizers from Norfolk into North Carolina as was prescribed by the Special Rate Commission under the Justice Freight Rate act for shipments of fertilizer within the State of North Carolina.

The commission found that the conditions at Norfolk were not substantially dissimilar from those obtaining at North Carolina points, and ordered the establishment of rates into North Carolina from Norfolk on the same scale as prevailed within the State of North Carolina. The carriers sought to meet this condition by raising the rates within the State of North Carolina to the Norfolk scale. The North Carolina Corporation Commission refused to grant the carriers' request, intervened in the Royster case, asked for a re-hearing and obtained it.

This hearing was begun in Norfolk Thursday. The North Carolina commission was represented by Chairman Travis, who was assisted by Cameron Morrison, Esq., of Charlotte, as counsel for State.

The Royster Guano Company did not introduce any evidence but relied upon that introduced at the former hearing.

The testimony of all these witnesses tended to show that the North Carolina intra-state rates are reasonable and that as compared with Norfolk all North Carolina points were at a disadvantage, because of much higher rates on inbound materials which entered into the manufacture of fertilizer.

The evidence of Mr. Womble showed that the earnings per mile of the Southern, A. C. L., and Seaboard as well as the net revenue after deducting operating expenses was larger in North Carolina than in other Southern states.

Mr. McCormick testified as to the rates at Wilmington, fertilizer manufacturing conditions here in general and as to the advantages that Norfolk had in the way of inbound rates on material used in the manufacture of fertilizers.

Mr. Travis stated that of more than 300,000 tons of fertilizer manufactured in Norfolk, 85 per cent. of it was shipped into North Carolina. He further showed the enormous increase of the Royster business at Norfolk under the old scale of rates, and argued this showed that Norfolk was at no actual disadvantage in the matter of rates. Mr. Travis' statement that the Royster company had a plant at Charlotte and at Tarboro and a controlling interest in one at Washington, N. C., was admitted.

Mr. Travis followed up this statement with the assertion that notwithstanding these plants in North Carolina and the alleged discriminatory rates the Royster company continued to supply nearly all of its customers from Norfolk, with the exception of comparatively small areas adjoining its North Carolina plants.

At the conclusion of the State's evidence, the attorney for the Royster company, Mr. W. F. Collins, stated that the Royster company did not regard the North Carolina intra-state rates as now in effect as unreasonable. Counsel for the State also showed that the present intra-state scale was not as low as the average intra-state scales of several other Southern states.

Mr. A. J. Galloway, attorney of the railways, contended that the Royster company had sworn that it would be satisfied either with the advance of the North Carolina intra-state scale or to have the rates from Norfolk lowered so as to meet the present North Carolina scale. The Royster company denied this contention most emphatically, and as the railways were not ready to present their evidence to refute the North Carolina witnesses, Examiner Watkins adjourned the hearing until yesterday morning.

Dr. H. Q. Alexander, president of the North Carolina Farmers' Union, was present looking after the interests of the farmers of this State. Among a large number of traffic officials present were Assistant Freight Traffic Manager J. W. Perrin and General Freight Agent C. McD. Davis, of Wilmington, representing the Atlantic Coast Line. A large number of North Carolina manufacturers, and chambers of commerce of North and South Carolina were also represented at the hearing.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The Symptoms and the Means of Avoiding It.

Raleigh, N. C., July 21.—With cases of infantile paralysis being reported daily from various parts of the country, numerous inquiries are being made from many sources as to the first symptoms of the disease and means of avoiding it. The State Board of Health has therefore issued the following brief bulletin of public interest:

"The first symptoms of the disease are usually a fever, vomiting and pains in the head, back and limbs. One should be suspicious if intestinal disturbances of almost any kind are associated with a stiff neck, drowsiness and fever. Known exposure to other cases of the disease should cause suspicion and suspicion should by all means be followed by a visit to the doctor.

"There are several important things to be done to prevent the disease. First of all, one should avoid all known or suspected cases of the disease. Flies of all kinds should be absolutely excluded from the house and from all food. Persons, cats, dogs and pets who have been in any way exposed to the disease should be avoided. Sick cats should be especially avoided. The mouth, teeth and nose should be washed several times daily. Finally, keep just as strong, robust and healthy as possible."

New Issue $100,000 Stonehaven Hotel Company

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

First Mortgage, 6% Coupon Gold Bonds Dated April 1st, 1916, and Due $5,000 per Year Beginning 1921. Interest Due April 1st and October 1st, and Payable at Cumberland Savings & Trust Co., Fayetteville, N. C.

Capital Stock, $100,000.00
THE NATIONAL BANK
United States Depository.

Fayetteville, N. C., May 4th, 1916.

I am pleased to say that I regard the Bonds of a $100,000.00 Bond Issue on the property of the Stonehaven Hotel Co. in this city as good in every respect. I am entirely familiar with this property and know its value. It consists of a business block on the Main Street of this city, 150' in frontage and extends through to the nevt street, a distance of 330'. This makes it a corner property and it has three street frontages. On the front of this property is a four-story brick building. This is a modern building and on the ground floor are six or seven retail stores which are rented for as much as $6,000.00 per year. The upper floors of this building are a modern hotel. This entire property is well located and will always be valuable. It is constantly increasing in value. I wish also to state that the other two street frontages of the property face the principal cotton district of our city and are very valuable for wholesale and warehouse purposes.

I regard the property as worth twice the Bond Issue and I am glad to say that I think an issue of $100,000.00 (One Hundred Thousand Dollars) upon this property as good in every respect.

Yours very truly,
S. W. COOPER.

The Stonehaven Hotel Co. owns at Fayetteville, N. C., a business block and modern hotel worth $200,000.00. The stores in the property are retail stores on one of the principal streets and are under leases to long standing tenants at a rental of more than $6,000 per year. The hotel itself has been for several years, and now is, under the operation and management of Mr. J. P. Sanders, of Greensboro and Charlotte, N. C., who is the president of the Stonehaven Hotel Co., and, who for many years, has successfully operated the Stonewall Hotel at Charlotte, the Yadkin Hotel at Salisbury, and other hotels in North Carolina.

Beginning October 1st, the hotel at Fayetteville will be leased to one of his companies at a rental of $9,000.00 per year, exclusive of the other leases of $6,000.00 per year referred to above, and will continue as heretofore under his personal management. The rental of the entire property as now computed, and is then fixed by leases, will be more than $15,000.00 per year, and after all insurance, taxes and other expenses are paid, the net rental of the property will be more than twice the interest on this entire issue of bonds. There is at present outstanding on the property a balance due of bonds amounting to $40,000.00 which will be retired from the sale of the new issue, a portion of which has been deposited with Chas. G. Rose, Trustee, for that purpose. Reference is made to letter published herewith from Mr. S. W. Cooper, who is president of the National Bank of Fayetteville.

Local investors in Fayetteville have just purchased $25,000.00 of these bonds. The balance amounting to $75,000.00 is offered for sale at par and interest.

This balance of $75,000.00 mature serially $5,000.00 per year beginning 1926 and are in denomination of $500.00 and $1,000.00. These bonds are now ready for delivery.

REFERENCE: NATIONAL BANK OF FAYETTEVILLE.

We recommend these bonds for investment. If interested call or wire.

TOP O' THE MORNING.

Our own way of being wrong is all right in our own eyes; our neighbor's way of being wrong is offensive to all that is good in us; we are anxious, kindly anxious, to pull the mote out of his eye, never thinking of the big beam in the way of the operation. * * * Our immediate business is to be right ourselves. Until we are even our righteous indignation is masted.

The United States has notified China that in her relations with Japan she is expected to observe all rights granted to this country. China will not be able to give the assurance sought, as she does not know exactly what arrangements the Japanese-Russian alliance has made concerning American rights in China. Probably they have never thought of that.

TREEING TEDDY AFTER THE TRAIL GETS COLD

Some of Teddy's words are being dished out to him but he refuses to eat them. His usual way of getting out of it is to deny what he said and give out statements that those who said that he said what he said are several kinds of falsificationists. What man in America has had questions of veracity between himself and so many other men as the Colonel? His straightest way out of it is to call some other man a liar, but when the instances are so numerous and the thing gets to be habitual with him, people are bound to have their doubts as to which is mistaken.

The latest question of veracity between the Colonel and some other man is his harsh denial of statements of his recalled by Mr. J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the Progressive state committee of New Jersey. A few days ago Hopkins sought to refresh the Colonel's memory by this portion of a letter which he wrote to the sage of Oyster Bay:

"You will recollect your stating to me that in the early part of the year you refused to go on record as saying that you would decline the Progressive nomination if Mr. Hughes were nominated by the Republicans, because you felt this would in effect be a demand for his nomination, and while you had inadvertently 'sold the party a gold brick once you did not wish to run the risk of doing it again.' You also told me that you were very much discouraged over the general situation, but that you intended to back Mr. Hughes because you felt he was 'a little, and perhaps, some, better than Mr. Wilson.' You clearly emphasized the fact that, in view of your criticisms of Mr. Wilson, this statement was not a very strong one, and you added the comment that 'perhaps after all he will turn out to be another gold brick.'"

Colonel Roosevelt brands the above statement of Hopkins as "absolutely false," but the New Jersey chairman can come very nearly proving his case by the Colonel's own telegram, in black and white, sent to the Republican convention at Chicago when he was trying to head off the nomination of Hughes in the interest of himself. Previous to that the Colonel was frequently quoted as saying that Hughes was too much like Wilson and that he would be another Taft, etc. While the fight for the nomination was on, the Colonel never denied that he said those things and it is impossible for him to get around his telegram to the Chicago convention. They are all so much like the statement made by Mr. Hopkins that the Jerseyman would be acquitted by any fair-minded jury in America.

However, Hopkins is sustained by cumulative evidence and ever recurring circumstances. One of them is that prior to the nomination the Colonel let it be stated without denial that he would oppose Hughes' nomination for practically the same reasons stated by Hopkins. Another is that everybody knows that Roosevelt made Taft president and then fought him for re-nomination and ran against him in 1912 on the very ground that Taft had proved a delusion and a snare—all the equivalent of a "gold brick."

All that Hopkins says is so much like what Roosevelt has said in effect, if not in the exact phraseology, the Baltimore Sun is forced to observe that "in brief, what Hopkins said is precisely what the Colonel might have been expected to be saying at the time referred to," and, furthermore, in brief as well as in fact, what Mr. Hopkins said corresponds almost exactly with undenied preconvention statements attributed to the Colonel, none of which he took the trouble to deny while the fight was on at Chicago and there was a chance to keep the Republican convention from nominating Hughes, who would be but the "vice-regent of the Kaiser," as Roosevelt declared in his own signed telegram.

The truth is, the Colonel may never have said "those words" attributed to him in Mr. Hopkins' own version of the conversation, but that he did say practically the same thing as Hopkins says he said is hardly to be doubted by men who have kept up with the Colonel during the past fifteen years. Whether you may call it ingenuity or not, it is a regular habit of the Colonel's to deny everything that is liable to get him in a hole and especially to deny statements not made in his own "exact words"—just word for word as he said them.

Anyway, how does Hopkins know but what all the Colonel said referred to the hues of the rainbow and not to the Hughes who is chasing the rainbow? The fact is, the Colonel refuses to be treed after he has been up the three and made a cold trail going away from the tree. Unk Ephraim's 'possum often made his escape in the same way.

THE MAN AND HIS TOWN

Is your town growing right here in the middle of the year, when it is supposed to be dull? If so the town is lucky, and surely the fact that a town is growing in July shows that it hasn't gone to sleep and is not taking a rest because the weather is hot. When a town is doing something winter and summer, weather or no weather, whether or not, the indications are that its people are live, energetic and enterprising.

A town is what its people make it, for they are both the same size and go to sleep together or go ahead together. A town has to be just like its folks because it can't help itself. Therefore, when a town is doing something all the time, it is the best sign that its folks are doing things. The Chester (S. C.) Reporter roused up all these remarks, for it makes this statement right in the midst of watermelon time:

"Chester will compare favorably at any time, and particularly at the present, with surrounding towns in the amount of building of one character and another that is going on. Much of this is due to the existence of three live and efficient Building and Loan associations, the sterling worth of which many of our citizens have long since realized, and which others would do well to acquaint themselves with."

If a town stays awake in the summertime you may know that it is some town and that it is a hustler when the fall and winter campaign begins. It's no winter time town that is doing things all the time, for a town that is growing in season and out of season is short on time and wants to turn back the clock or lengthen out the year to something like fourteen months.

It is all right about a town's building and loan associations, its savings banks and its commercial banks, but let up drop a line for the man and his town. It is the men of a town who establish and support the building and loan associations and the banks, for they are man's institutions for saving and hoarding till the time comes to use the money to build up the town. Plenty of substantial hoarding places show that the men of a town have some idea of financial preparedness, and it is in the building and banking establishments that a town's men lay up for a rainy day or a busy day or a constructive day.

The man is the big thing about it, and if he saves a nest egg he can hatch up some scheme and carry it out with the capital that he lays up in the bank or places to his credit in building and loan stock. Men who do not save what they make will never do a thing for their town in July. Chester's mid-summer growth is only on account of its men and they do things for themselves and their town because they have confidence in its future. A town is only as live in July as its men are. At no time is a town any deader than its men.

THE RADICAL GROUP OF DEMOCRATS

A New York financial journal, in discussing the new Federal Rural Credits act, signed a few days ago by President Wilson, says "it was put through by the radical group of Democrats," and that "the conservative Democrats contented themselves with working for the elimination of government aid and other obnoxious features." However, they voted for it and so did a large number of Republicans, although financial circles in New York attribute it to the circumstance that "a vast majority of Congress were unwilling to incur the hostility of the farmer constituency."

There is no enthusiasm in New York over the Rural Credits act and it is called "purely class legislation," because it discriminates, they say, in favor of the farmers. As a matter of course, that is the view to be expected from Wall Street circles and that was about the same view they took of the Federal Reserve Bank act which proved a godsend to the country. As a matter of fact, the Rural Credits act does not discriminate in favor of the farmers, but it puts an end to discrimination against them in the matter of securing credit. The bill simply makes land a banking asset in accordance with its value and places land on as near a bankable equality as possible with bonds and stocks, many of which are practically worthless as bank colateral, not near so safe as good land security in a country where land is constantly increasing in value.

Land and agriculture have been systematically and continuously discriminated against by Republican banking legislation, and there is reason to wonder that agriculture has thrived at all. It has had the lid on it for years but now the Democratic Congress has done what it could so far to take it off. That is all there is to that.

The only discrimination in it is that stock gamblers and speculators can't get land bank funds with which to carry on their line of business. They will have to rely on the other banks in which their collaterals have long since enabled them to get money when farmers were not able to get money at all at any kind of reasonable interest and cost.

There is a great deal of uneasiness in New York lest the Rural Credits act contains "government aid and other obnoxious features" in the interest of the farmers. It really and truly is funny how they dread government aid for farmers while they favor and howl for government aid by the billions for manufacturers and industrial combines and for years they have been trying to break into the Treasury for government aid for the shipping interests. With them any possible government aid for farmers would be terrible!

Newspapers which call public buildings bills "pork," must live in towns which have postoffice quarters to rent to the government at twice the rental that it would pay out for interest and up-keep on its own buildings. Why don't the "pork barrel" exploiters find out what the government rent bill is and ascertain whether or not it would pay the government to build or whether it would pay the towns for the government to rent. Of course, if there were any "pork" in either instance, it could be easily traced to its porkological center. Why don't the waterways and buildings porkological editors fish out the "pork" and show the actual gooda? Instead of calling this a "pork barrel" Congress, why not find out whether or not it is a "pork barrel" town that porkologists live in? Trail the pork from Washington to the place which looks greasy.

Washington, N. C., July 20.—The colored Volunteer Firemen's Association of North Carolina will hold its annual convention and tournament here on August 15, 16 and 17. Four or five hundred negroes will be in attendance. White people are donating for their entertainment. Washington has had several conventions of the association in recent years.

FROM JUDGE ROUNTREE

To the Editor of The Star:

"Tot homines, tot sententiae," says Juvenal, and Juvenal was a wise man. Hence, I think no one has a just right to complain that Mr. Whitehead should entertain singular opinions of Mr. Carr's fitness, and he has a perfect right to express those opinions in courteous terms. I confess, however, that I was under the impression that I knew Mr. Carr and his qualifications as well as anyone, but I do not know the Mr. Carr that Mr. Whitehead describes, and, as for his leaning upon me, I rather thought it was the other way around. Very truly yours,

GEORGE ROUNTREE.

July 21, 1916.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The cantaloupe season is now at its height, and Laurinburg and Scotland county are fully appreciative of the good results which the season brings. Monday was perhaps a record breaker so far as volume of shipments is concerned. We have been unable to get accurate figures, but conservative estimates place the number of cars loaded during the day and up to 12 o'clock at night at about 150 or more. At $300 a car this would represent a total income of $45,000 for the day.—Laurinburg Exchange.

Wilmington has placed a live wire at the head of its Chamber of Commerce. Mr. M. W. Jacobi, senior member of the well-known N. Jacobi Hdw. Co., has been elected to that position. Mr. Jacobi is not only well known and popular in Wilmington but he is well known and popular throughout a large territory in this section of the State. The N. Jacobi Hdw. Co., by the way, is one of the best-known business houses in this part of the State, and it has carried an advertisement in The Robesonian since the first issue of the paper in 1870, without missing an issue.—Lumberton Robesonian.

After a diligent investigation of the matter it has been found by the Chamber of Commerce that the time is not now propitious for the proposed Sociability Tour to a number of points in Eastern North Carolina which can very easily be considered within the trade radius of Raleigh. The programme which has been agreed upon is that the tour be undertaken at a later date, the statement being made that this will be in six weeks. In that time there will be ample opportunity to arrange matters so that the trip will be such as to prove of great benefit to this city. The spirit of the new Raleigh is progress. We are in condition to expand our trade area, and all that is needed is that there be full co-operation between the men at the head of the various lines of business in this city. We are convinced that this co-operation is now larger than at any previous time in the history of the city, and we look for it to grow. When plans have been perfected for the Sociability Tour we hope that there will be that enthusiasm in the project as to make certain a big delegation of our business men.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Dominant Americanism is a noble issue, and it is no less noble today than it was when Mark Hanna described the exploitation of the American people by Privilege and Plutocracy as "saving the national honor." Mr. Hughes and his supporters have a great deal to say about "the weakness and timidity," as they term it, of President Wilson. When Mr. Hughes makes his speech of acceptance, an extraordinary opportunity for the manifestation of personal courage will present itself to him. Will he be brave enough and daring enough to tell the country why Wall Street is for him, why the tariff extortionists are for him, why the trusts are for him, why the jingoes are for him, why the militarists and advocates of conscription are for him, why the German-American Alliance is for him and why he is now the hope of the professional hyphenated vote? Is it because of their exalted patriotism and of his dominant Americanism as compared with President Wilson's dominant Americanism? Mr. Hughes may think so, but if he does, somebody is being fooled, and the reactionary elements that are supporting Mr. Hughes in order to defeat Mr. Wilson are not in the habit of being deceived. Mr. Hughes cannot smother the issues of the campaign by spread-eagle eloquence about dominant Americanism.—New York World.

COLUMBUS REPUBLICANS CAUCUS

Meeting Held at Whiteville to "Get a Line On the Situation."

(Special Star Correspondence).

Whiteville, N. C., July 21.—That the Republican party of this county intends making a strenuous and aggressive campaign to gain from one-half to all the county offices in the November election was seen very plainly yesterday in a caucus of nominees and campaign committees, called by Chairman Irvin B. Tucker, to get a "line on the situation." Here yesterday were F. M. Stevens, of Boardman, candidate for county commissioner; J. B. Wyche, Hallsboro, and K. L. Stanley, of Bug Hill, the other two Republican nominees for commissioner; Leslie Pierce, of Hallsboro, nominee for register of deeds, and John Henry Williamson, of Cerro Gordo, nominee for sheriff.

Other party leaders who were in the caucus, in addition to Chairman Tucker, who is his party's nominee for representative, included Seth L. Smith, who was made chairman of the campaign committee, and who says that his helpmates are real workers who will enter the compaign determined to "put Columbus county's government on the highest plane it has enjoyed in years."

There is no doubt in Democratic circles that the coming campaign promises a flood of interesting developments.

COL. OLDS WAS PRESENT.

And is Yet Somewhere in the Flood Scourged Region.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 20.—Col. Fred A. Olds, director of the Hall of History, is somewhere in the flood scourged portions of Western Carolina and his friends here are anxiously and expectantly awaiting "the first word" from him. When last heard from just before the floods, he was at Cullowhee, Jackson county. Since the floods mail that had been forwarded to him at various points in his itinerary has been returned to the Historical Commission here. Friends are confident that the Colonel has not only taken care of himself in the unprecedented flood conditions and dangers, but that he has put in many exploits in behalf of others that were well worth while.

SPEAKS OF BONER, STOCKARD M'NEILL AND OTHER POETS

Dr. Sledd Lectures at Chapel Hill "Literature in North Carolina."

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Chapel Hill, N. C., July 21.—John Henry Boner, Henry Jerome Stockard and John Charles McNeill were the North Carolina poets around which Dr. Benjamin Sledd last night grouped his remarks on "Literature in North Carolina." He declared that each of these men had made genuine contribution to the literature of the Southland. "The saddest page of literary history is the page of the poet in the South," said Dr. Sledd. He showed what hardships and privations many of the Southern writers have had to suffer.

In the early part of his lecture, Dr. Sledd referred to the literary work now going on at Chapel Hill. He referred appreciatively to the critical work of Prof. Archibald Henderson, the valuable historical work of Prof. J. G. De Roulhac Hamilton, and the excellent work in scholarship being done through the University journal, "Studies in Philology." He also spoke of Mrs. Henderson's translation of the famous German "Song of Hate."

The speaker referred to Boner as at first an outcast, and later a hack writer in the House of Representatives, where he worked himself to death. Boner's short lyrics are fine pictures of North Carolina background and landscape. Dr. Sledd read "The Lightwood Fire," "The Whispering Pines," and the fine tribute to Edgar Allan Poe, which he declared to be one of the best things ever written about Poe.

An intimate glimpse was given by Professor Sledd of Henry Jerome Stockard, whom he had known well. Stockard led the traditional life of a Southern poet, and died in Raleigh about two years ago. His lovely sonnets were referred to, and the tribute to Shakespeare was pronounced the finest in the language, with the exception of Arnold's."

SOMETHING EXPECTED TO "DROP" AT KENANSVILLE NEXT WEEK

State Expected to Take Steps to Stop "Night Riding."

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Kenansville, N. C., July 21.—Steps taken by the State to suppress night riding as the result of opposition to the stock law now in force in Duplin county, are expected to be revealed at a term of Superior court to be convened here Monday. The outrages have not abated in the least since they were first reported to the State authorities several weeks ago, according to reports from the Beulaville-Chinquapin section. According to one official, "they cut pasture fences most every night."

J. W. Kilpatrick, an inspector aiding in enforcement of the cattle quarantine in the county, who Wednesday told Solicitor H. E. Shaw that he had been fired upon three times, has asked permission to carry a pistol. Once Kilpatrick was shot at in the vicinity of a country store some miles from Beulaville, and again, when two shots were fired at him, from ambush as in the other case, at a point eight miles east of Chinquapin.

COLUMBUS TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Expected to be Attended by 50 to 60 Teachers—August 7.

(Special Star Correspondence).

Whiteville, N. C., July 21.—Superintendent F. T. Wooten is expecting 50 to 60 teachers here for the institute beginning August 7th and continuing for two weeks, in addition to the large percentage of the teachers of this county who are attending the summer schools at Chapel Hill and Greenville. Another progressive measure to be inaugurated in the school system of Columbus county is the employment of Miss Eliza Parker, who has been principal of the Hallsboro school, as superintendent of the rural schools of the county. Miss Parker will have her office here but will spend the largest part of her time in visiting and superintending the rural schools ,of which this county has quite a large number. It would have been hard to have found any one more peculiarly adapted to this work than is Miss Parker, who, it will be recalled, was rewarded with the Peabody Institute scholarship by the State board for efficient progress while principal of the Hallsboro school. The two dormitories of the Whiteville and Chadbourn high schools will be open this year and an increased attendance at each place is looked for.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months.

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

Pleurisy With Effusion

THIS is what people call the water in the chest; doctors call this substance the blood plasma, and then they speak of sero-fibrinous pleurisy (fibrin plus serum). And when the patient recovers (by the absorption of the fluid, or its withdrawal in the way I will later mention) "granulations" will form, there will be permanent thickening of the pleural membranes and oftentimes adhesions of the opposing membranes—which are likely to continue to be painful.

In pleurisy with effusion, besides the symptoms we mentioned yesterday as going with dry pleurisy, the fever becomes pretty high (up to 103 by the clinical thermometer), apt to be lower in the morning and higher in the evening. This fever may drop down to normal at the end of a week or ten days; or it may persist several weeks. The pain continues to be severe, and it may be felt most in the armpit, or in the breast, or in the abdomen, or the back. There is either no cough, or it is without spittle, or with just a slight expectoration. And the pulse becomes rapid, from 120 to even 140 the minute. The lungs on the affected side now become compressed by reason of the constantly increasing fluid, which sometimes comes up as high as the third or the second rib—even higher. Naturally, then, there is constantly increasing and most distressing shortness of breath. If the pleurisy is left-sided the heart may be pushed toward the right. In thin people it is the ribs which stick out, but where there is much fluid in the chest, the spaces between the ribs will stick out and the affected side will become larger. If the pleurisy is right-sided the liver may be pushed downward. As anybody can realize, these are serious conditions.

And yet a still worse state may come on—that is, pleurisy with the production of pus, empyema, which we will take up in our next article.

CATARRH.

N. S. writes: Have catarrh in my head and throat, have always had a terrible taste in my mouth, which grows worse all the time and seems to come directly from the throat. The taste is as bad as if something were mortified. Several years ago little yellow hard patches would come into my mouth from my throat. My tonsils are hardly noticeable so that they cannot be affected. Am troubled with eczema in face, and nervous indigestion at times. My ear drums seem to feel as if I had taken cold; is that part of the disease?

Answer: Your general ill health will certainly not improve until your catarrh has been cured. The offensive character of the discharges is called oezena. It is very possible that bone tissue in and about your nose is diseased; in such cases there is an odor as of rotten eggs. You must imperatively have all this remedied. The tonsils may be small and yet be the focus of rheumatism and other germs. You will always have indigestion and in time worse, so long as you keep on swallowing the nasal discharges. Yes; the ears are always affected in nasal and throat catarrh. Almost all cases of deafness come about that way.

WAX IN THE EAR.

Answer to R. A. B.: Cerumen ("wax in the ear") may become lodged in the external ear; and this may be the cause of deafness, ringing in the ear, giddiness, even of cough. Syringing with water as warm as can possibly be borne will in most cases remove this wax. During this process a basin is held under the ear. One may add to the water sodium bicarbonate and glycerin (a tablespoonful of each to one pint.)

THE SKIN.

Answer to A. M.: The skin has at least four functions: To protect the underlying structures; it is a specialized sense organ, for touch; it helps to regulate the bodily temperature; it excretes a lot of bodily waste as perspiration.

At the July meeting of Wilmington Typographical Union, No. 556, the following resolutions were adopted and copies forwarded as instructed therein:

"Whereas, the several unions of the printing trades throughout this country have been the means of vastly improving the condition of the workers of that important industry, and have succeeded in placing the business on a higher plane; and

"Whereas, While looking carefully after the material welfare of the workers they have, through educational work and the securing of improved sanitary surroundings, greatly decreased the death rate; and also two of the unions have provided splendid homes to care for aged or incapacitated tubercular afflicted members, while one has established and maintains an old age pension system, and

"Whereas, These unions have, through their educational systems, not only elevated their own membership and all others engaged in the printing industry, either as workers or employers, but used their influence in manifold ways for the advancement and betterment of humanity, and

"Whereas, It is one of the prime objects of union printing shops to produce, and they do produce, better and more permanent and standard work than non-union shops, and

MILLION IS EXPENDED ON LOCAL WATERWAYS

Shown by U. S. Engineer's Annual Report, Forwarded

Covers Work of River and Harbor Improvement in Wilmington District for Fiscal Yearing Ending June 30, Last.

Approximately one million dollars was expended upon public improvements in the Wilmington Engineering District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, according to the annual report of Captain C. S. Ridley, of the local United States Engineer's office, in charge of the district. The report was forwarded to Brig.-Gen. W. M. Black, Chief of the Engineer Corps, U. S. A., at Washington, D. C.

The exact amount of the aggregate spent in the district was $983,494.30. Of this sum, $142,654.55 was expended on improving the Cape Fear river below Wilmington; while $218,071.53 was expended on the two locks and dams and other work above the city. More than half the total or $578,406.27 was spent on the Harbor of Refuge at Cape Lookout. The amount spent on Lock and Dam No. 1 for maintenance and completion was $20,751.37, while the sum total spent on Lock and Dam No. 2 now in process of construction at Brown's Landing, was $197,320.16.

Other big projects on which large sums were expended included the improvement of the Pamlico and Tar rivers for which disbursements during the year amounted to $25,474.79. The remainder of the expenditures was made on various smaller projects in the district, included among which were the Neuse river, Beaufort Inlet, Morehead City harbor, the waterway between New river and Swansboro, the waterway from Pamlico sound to Beaufort inlet and others.

The three government dredges, the Cape Fear, the Henry Bacon and the Hercules, each averaged about six months of work during the year on the river below the city. In widening the channel over the ocean bar, the Cape Fear dredge removed 181,485 cubic yards of sand from the ocean and 207,737 yards from river channel; the Henry Bacon removed 821,513 cubic yards of sand from the river channel; and the Hercules 239,674 yards of sand and the like from the river channel.

As a result of these dredging operations the ocean bar channel has been maintained at a depth of 26 feet for a width of 280 to 400 feet. The work on the river channel has been confined to maintenance and consisted of removing shoals at Lilliput, old Brunswick Cove, Midnight and lower Snow's channels.

On the Upper Cape Fear river, Lock and Dam No. 1 were completed early in the fiscal year and most of the year's work was spent upon the construction of Lock and Dam No. 2 at Brown's Landing. This construction work was mostly on the lock proper and the lock abutment, but the river shoals below King's Bluff were also dredged. A steel pile cofferdom at Lock No. 2 was completed, and the inside of the cofferdam dredged out by the removal of 18,000 cubic yards of sand and mud. Pine piles to the number of 2,115 were driven and concrete to the quantity of 3,849 cubic yards deposited. In the construction of the lock wall 6,811 cubic yards were deposited, the walls of the lock being nearly two-thirds completed on June 30, 1916, or 69 per cent completed, to be exact.

Capt. J. R. D. Matheson has been in local charge of the construction work at Lock and Dam No. 2. This improvement when completed will represent a $450,000 investment by the Federal government.

When completed, the lock and dam, which is 71 miles up the river from Wilmington, will furnish vessels an eight-foot channel from its site to Fayetteville. The importance of the early completion of the lock can be readily grasped when it is recalled that vessels of any size at all cannot get above Elizabethtown, and sometimes not above Walker's Bluff, (60 miles up the river), in the summer. In dry weather there is only two feet of water in the channel at Fayetteville. The completion of the lock will change all this, and give navigators a minimum depth of eight feet in the channel all the way from Wilmington to Fayetteville.

WANT NEGRO FOR HOMICIDE

Traced from St. Pauls to Wilmington by Chief Newton and Arrested Yesterday.

Traced to Wilmington by a letter and telegram he had sent to his mother, Walter McDonald, alias Harris, colored, wanted at St. Paul's, N. C., was arrested yesterday afternoon on South Second street near Dock by Chief of Police Melvin Newton, of St. Pauls, on the charge of having killed another negro about three weeks ago at the last named place.

When arrested, McDonald is reported to have admitted to the police and others that he had killed the negro by shooting him in the throat with a charge from a shotgun. He stated that the trouble came about over a colored woman.

McDonald said that after the shooting he left St. Pauls and went to Baltimore, later coming to Wilmington, where he has been employed for more than a week at the trading stables conducted by Mr. J. H. Black on Dock street.

He was arrested by Chief Newton while showing a mule's gaits to a prospective purchaser. When Mr. Black learned of the arrest, he paid the negro the part of his week's wage due him, and the prisoner was taken to St. Pauls on the train leaving the union station at about 3 o'clock.

A. C. L. TO RESTORE SERVICE TO AUGUSTA

Trains Will be Taken Over Santee River After Monday.

Will Be Week or Ten Days Before Line Between Sumter and Columbia Will Be Open But Trains Will Be Detoured.

Announcement was made yesterday from the office of Mr. T. C. White, general Passenger Agent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company, that effective Monday, July 24th, the A. C. L. expects to restore through service between Wilmington, Augusta and Atlanta, and on the same date will restore through service between Augusta, Washington and New York and in the opposite direction.

This definite announcement was officially made yesterday in order that the public may known what to expect since the interruption of the train service south of Wilmington on the A. C. L., by reason of the severe floods in the western part of the State.

It was also stated officially yesterday that the line across the Wateree river, between Sumter and Columbia, will not be opened for traffic perhaps for a week or ten days. However, pending the opening of this line, the company will, effective Monday, operate one train each day to and from Columbia with connections from Wilmington, Charleston, Maxton and points intermediate, via some route to be announced later, such service to remain in effect until conditions are normal.

There is no interruption of through traffic over the main line of the A. C. L. between Washington, Richmond, Charleston, Savannah and territory south thereof.

According to the police, McIntire is charged with having picked up the suit case which was thrown off the excursion train from Richmond at Ninth street by the owner, preparatory to leaving the train at that point. It is said that the suit case contained a small amount of whiskey. According to the police, some of the contents of the suit-case were found at the Cobb woman's home and later identified by the owner.

NEGRO WANTED IN VIRGINIA IS REMOVED TO HOSPITAL

Injuries of Mitchell Wilson More Serious Than Was First Thought.

Mitchell Wilson, colored, who was lodged in the county jail in Wilmington on the charge of having thrown a fellow colored passenger from an excursion train which arrived here Wednesday night, and who was himself injured in an attempt to escape from the train following his alleged assault on two other negroes, was removed yesterday from the jail to the hospital for treatment.

The negro who was thrown from the train is reported to be in a serious condition in Virginia. Pending the outcome of the latter's injuries it is likely that Wilson will be held here, and later turned over to the Virginia authorities if they ask for him through the proper channels, or he may be tried before the Recorder here.

Cantaloupes in Robeson.

Lumberton Robesonion: "Four car loads of cantaloupes had been shipped from Lumberton over the V. & C. S. road this week up to last night and one each day the balance of the week. The biggest shipment was yesterday when two car loads were shipped. It takes 400 crates to load a car, which means that not less than 2,800 crates will be shipped from Lumberton this week. Prices so far as very good and the farmers who grew these "loupes" are realizing quite a bit of money from them. This is the first year that cantaloupes have been shipped in car load lots from Lumberton and it is due to the work among the farmers of Mr. W. G. Gilchrist, industrial agent of the V. & C. S. railroad. It is estimated that the crop has been cut off about 40 per cent. by wet weather.

BACK FROM CONVENTION

Messrs. Percy W Wells and D M Bain Return From Durham Meeting.

Mr. Percy W. Wells, who was honored with re-election as president of the Association of Moving Picture Exhibitors in this State, and Mr. D. M. Bain, publicity and booking agent of the Howard & Wells Amusement Company, of this city, returned yesterday morning from Durham, N. C., where they attended the annual convention of the association this week, reporting a most successful meeting and splendid entertainment by the people of the tobacco city.

There were present not only the leading exhibitors form North Carolina but several prominent movie men of the National Association and of the big film exchanges and manufacturing enterprises all over the country. The exhibitors got right down to business and many suggestions were made and discussed that will result in bringing this big industry to much more satisfactory standards than ever before. Mr. Wells says that the Chamber of Commerce especially is due the thanks of the Association for the splendid manner in which it entertained the visitors on the occasion.

—The many friends of Rev. W. E. Cox, who has been a patient at the James Walker Memorial Hospital for several days past, will be glad to learn that he has recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home.

WHERE ALL ARMIES AGREE.

All World Armies Agree That Vaccination Prevents Typhoid.

(State Board of Health.)

Since Russia has recently made anti-typhoid vaccination compulsory for her army, all the great armies of the world are agreed upon one point—that vaccination as a means of preventing typhoid fever is efficient and indispensable. As a result of these combined forces against typhoid, the whole continent of Europe has been made almost free from the disease. It is by no means the scourge to army life that it used to be.

For a long time Russia was skeptical as to the use of anti-typhoid vaccine for her army and not until last year did she show signs of relenting. Early this year she took the matter into consideration and makes the statement that for five months she received such an array of favorable testimony from other countries as to the effect of this preventive treatment that the authorities immediately made it compulsory in the Russian army. Since adopting the vaccine treatment against typhoid with such convincing results, she has been encouraged to make vaccination against smallpox and cholera compulsory also. Recently one entire army in the Caucasus was vaccinated against typhoid, smallpox and cholera in one day, with no serious results.

As to the value of anti-typhoid vaccine, the war in Europe has supplied a test on an enormous scale, and there has been no divergence of opinion as to its use or efficacy at any time. As a matter of fact, its efficacy has been so well established in Europe that many states or countries, Galicia, for instance, has made its use compulsory for her entire population. Germany says she has given it to millions with no serious consequences.

TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

State Board of Health Advises Parents to Watch for First Signs.

Raleigh, N. C., July 18.—"At this time when infantile paralysis, or poliomyelitis, is spreading so rapidly in different parts of the country, it is vitally necessary," says the State Board of Health, "that the people of North Carolina should know something of the character of this disease which may at any time become an epidemic among our people.

"Infantile paralysis is mainly a disease of children which often ends fatally or proceeds to permanent paralysis or malformation. The means by which it is spread, is unknown, but from the way in which cases have occurred in New York and other cities, it is highly probable that personal contact is the prevailing source and that adults, parents or relations who have no outward signs of affection may be carriers as well as acute, mild or dismissed cases. The house fly is suspected as a carrier, also. It must not be forgotten that infantile paralysis is a more dangerous disease than diphtheteria for the reason that no special organism has been isolated as a cause of the disease and we cannot tell when a person is infected.

"Persons will recognize, however, where there are reported cases, the importance of keeping their children away from picnics, outings or gatherings of any kind where there will be intermingling of children. A close watch should be kept upon all children of susceptible age, which is under ten years.

"A few points to be remembered in order to prevent the spread of this disease are: Immediate medical attention should be obtained for children with unusual fever, symptoms of headache, vomiting, intestinal irritation and perhaps delirium. When children complain of pain in their limbs or inability to use them, this should cause suspicion and not that they are hurt or have met a slight accident. Caressing and kissing children by friends or strangers is probably a factor in spreading this disease as is the exchanging of toys, candies and fruits with other children."

—Chadbourn Herald: "Dr. McClure, pastor of St. Andrew's church at Wilmington, will preach a Masonic sermon in the Baptist church here tomorrow (Friday) night at eight o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend and hear this gifted preacher. A special choir will furnish music."

JOY RIDE IN STOLEN AUTO PROVES FATAL

One Negro Killed and Two Others Injured in Raleigh

Industrial Growth in State Summarized by Commissioner Shipman—Will Black is Elecrocuted—Winston Judgship.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., July 21.—Nathan Moore, negro chauffeur, who had stolen out the automobile of his employer, Dr. E. B. Ferebee, for a night joy ride with pals, was instantly killed early this morning and two negro women, Hargie Rhodes and Sinie Ruffin, were injured, the former seriously, when the car turned turtle near St. Augustine school. The party had been drinking and, according to Fred Herndon, who jumped in time to safe himself, Moore was too drunk to keep the car in the road. The automobile was very slightly injured.

Governor Craig issued a statement today regarding his recent appointment of Hon. Francis D. Winston to the Superior court judgeship to succeed the late R. B. Peebles, the purpose being to put an end to reports that have gained circulation, especially in Judge Winston's district where he must make the fight for renomination and election this fall, to the effect that the appointment was through prearrangement with Senator Simmons for a readjustment of Federal positions. The statement reads:

"The appointment of Francis D. Winston was made without regard to Federal position. Senator Simmons knew nothing about it and had nothing to do with it. He doubtless had never thought of Winston for the judgship. When it was made known to me that Judge Winston would accept, I immediately appointed him because of his eminent fitness and because he deserved it."

A special term of Hoke county Superior court is ordered by Governor Craig to convene August 21, Judge Whedbee presiding. It is to be for civil causes.

Will Black Electrocuted.

Will Black, the Greene county negro paid the death penalty at 10:30 o'clock this morning for criminal assault on a six-year-old child in Greene county. He went to the death chair without a quaver and without leaving any special statement. It was five minutes and forty seconds from the time he entered the death chamber until he was pronounced dead. There were three applications of the voltage by Warden Busbee.

This electrocution terminated one of the most sensational criminal cases that has occurred in this State in a great while. Black was rushed to the penitentiary immediately after the crime to escape a mob, which turned its attention to the father of the negro who had been carried to the Lenoir county prison at Kinston for safe keeping, being charged with aiding his son to escape and reflecting on the white people against whom the boy had committed the outrage. They raided the Kinston jail and lynched the old man. Now there are investigations pending as to leaders of the mob that have brought about several arrests.

Industrial Growth in State.

Commissioner of Labor and Printing M. L. Shipman has just made public most valuable and illuminating official statistics from the United States Department of Commerce giving the status of industries in North Carolina comparatively for three five-year periods—1904, 1909 and 1914.

The statement, or summary, shows that there were 5,507 establishments classed as industries in the State, having an output of $289,412,000 and employing 136,844 operatives. This is in comparison with 3,272 establishments in 1904 and 4,931 in 1909, the value of products in these years being respectively, $142,521,000 and $216,656,000.

There were respectively 34, 56 and 66 bakeries in the three periods and the output increased to, respectively, $248,000; $539,000 and $873,000. The brick, tile and pottery business fluctuated from 107 establishments in 1904 to 179 in 1909 and 139 in 1914, the output having increased from $802,800 to $1,520,000.

Cars and general shop construction industries grew from 11 to 16 establishments and the output from 2,444,000 to $5,048,000.

Cotton goods, including cotton small wears, developed from 212 to 293 establishments and from $47,254,000 value of output to $90,744,000 and hosiery and knit goods from 40 to 72, establishments and $2,448,000 to $8,892,000 value of output.

In lumber and timber products the establishments or mills increased from 1,364 to 2,952 and the value of output from $191,489,000 to $39,632,000.

Cotton seed oil mills increased from 48 to 62 establishments and value of output from $3,749,000 to $15,269,000. In fertilizer manufacturing the factories increased from 27 to 41 and value of output from $3,099,000 to $10,308,000.

ARMY CANT HOLD MINOR

Judge Connor Renders Decision in Favor of Kinston Parents.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

New Bern, N. C., July 21.—In an able and exhaustive opinion handed down yesterday by Judge Henry G. Connor in the case in which Private R. C. Avery, of Kinston, was endeavoring to secure a release from the North Carolina National Guard, he ordered that Avery be discharged by the military authorities and ordered the United States Marshal to proceed to Camp Glenn, take the young man in charge and turn him over to his parents at Kinston.

In this case Private Avery enlisted in the National Guard more than a year ago. He went to Camp Glenn and when the time came to take the Federal Oath he refused to do so. His parents claimed that at time he enlisted he was under age and did so without their consent.

In making his decision, Judge Connor held, as contended by the attorney for the young man's parents, that as between the United States and the minor part of the controversy, that the contract of enlistment was good but was voidable upon the petition by the defendant's parents for his release from the Guard.

The army made a hard fight in this case and had the judge advocate general go down from Washington, D. C., to look after their interests. The case has attracted much interest and the outcome has been keenly awaited.

THEATRICAL

Charlie Chaplin's greatest comedy, "Police," the last one he made for Essanay before signing that famous $670,000 contract with Mutual, has just been released after many months of court litigation, and is announced as today's big feature at the Grand theatre, and will undoubtedly be witnessed by more people than ever before attended a Wilmington theatre in a single day.

"Police," to take the word of Charlie himself, is the best thing he ever did. He state that frankly. It presents the role in which Chaplin gained world-wide fame, back in his old time slap-stick, with the hand-me-down suit and worn-out shoes. It's riotous, tempestuous, teeming with action all the way through.

"Police" presents the famous comedian as a released convict. He is chiefly occupied in dodging policemen. A prison parson exhorts him to go straight and takes the five dollars which was given him on his discharge. Chaplin's efforts to recover the money are mirth provoking. He falls in with a burglar whom he knew in prison. They try to break into a house. The "jimmy" will not open the window, so Chaplin walks in the door which was open all the time.

He breaks open the mail box, the piano and the kitchen stove—being a rather inexperienced burglar—and then contents himself with stealing the flowers off the tables, much to the disgust of his accomplice, who takes the rings to the lady of the house. She saves Chaplin from arrest when the police come and gives him some change. He goes to a ten-cent lodging house and demoralizes the place, showing the others how to quiet noisy guests. He accomplishes this in a simple manner, merely striking them over the head with bottles.

His burglar friend comes in and with a free-for-all-fight Chaplin recovers the lady's jewels and returns them to her next day. Then a policeman whom Chaplin had never done anything to, except hit on the head with a mallet, chases him off the steps just when he hoped to win the widow.

Big Bill at Bijou.

The Bijou today offers one of the greatest bills of pictures ever seen on the screen at that theatre, a mammoth five-reel programme of features, every one a big headliner and capable of going at the head of the programme.

There is a double dose of L-Ko today—two great L-Ko comedy screams that in themselves will be worth much more than the small admission price. "Gertie's Joy Ride," is a roaring smash starring those two great favorites, Gertrude Selby, with Hank Mann, the Durham boy, that contains a laugh to the inch. Then comes "A Scandal at Sea," starring Louise Orth, Ray Griffith and Reggie Morris in the leading roles. These are two of the greatest comedy productions that L-Ko has ever produced, and you don't want to miss them today.

And now comes a rare treat. A great two-reel Imp comedy drama, "Blind Man's Bluff," starring those two favorites, Matt Moore and Jane Gail, in the leading roles, one of the best productions released by Imp in many months in two solid reels of enjoyment.

And still more—Animated Weekly contains some of the biggest scenes you have ever witnessed on the screen.

"The Cycle of Fate"—Royal.

The Royal announces for today's big Saturday attraction a massive six-reel Selig Red Seal play, "The Cycle or Fate," starring Bessie Eyton, Wheeler Oakman and a big cast of well-known stars.

"The Cycle of Fate" is a story of the tang of the sea, and the voice of the city. Maybelle Strong loses her husband in a shipwreck, and when she hears the news she drops a lamp and burns her hand. Later, she passes away after giving birth to twins, a boy and a girl, both of whom also carry the birthmark on their hands. "The Cycle of Fate" swings and the boy in a distant city becomes known as "Red Hand," the crook, while his sister becomes a school teacher in the little village of Oceancove. Sid Aldrich arrives at the little village and wins the love of Maybelle. He entices the girl to the city under promise of marriage. After the girl falls into the power of the city "Boss," she is rescued by Joe Strong, who sees the birthmark on her hand. Later, Aldrich and the "Boss" try to "frame up" a scheme to punish Joe Strong. He enters the home where Maybelle is employed and secrets himself behind a screen while Aldrich attacks the girl. Joe Strong kills Aldrich and tells the girl to inform the police that she did the act in self-defense. Joe recognizes the girl as his long-lost sister but she does not know him. Joe escapes to fall into the arms of a detective. However, this sleuth is kind hearted, appreciates that Joe has been "framed," and gives him an opportunity to lead a better life.

Hamlet, N. C., July 21.—The Rockingham district conference of the M. E. church, South, began its sessions on Wednesday night, with the sermon by Rev. J. B. Thompson, of Laurinburg. The business session was held at 9:30 Thursday morning, the presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Hall, of Rockingham, presiding. The roll call showed 20 out of 24 ministers present and about one half of the 90 lay delegates. Rev. W. E. Brown, of Gibson, was elected secretary. All ministers present made good reports, showing the great growth of the church. Rev. G. F. Smith, of Rockingham, preached at the evening hour. The conference will be in session until Sunday night.

WATERMELONS BY CARLOADS.

Being Shipped from Dundarrock This Week—New Experiment.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Dundarrock, N. C., July 21.—Watermelons began moving from this point this week, and by the end of the week five or six car loads will have gone forward. This industry is a new one for this section. Mr. W. A. Blue, general superintendent of the Aberdeen & Rockfish railroad; Mr. Jesse Gibson, general manager of the Dundarroch Trading Company, and Mr. J. A. McPhaul are the leaders in this movement. Nearly 200 acres were planted here this year. Mr. Gibson has given them his personal attention from the preparation of the land, through the season of cultivation and is now assisting the farmers in grading and marketing the melons, which are of a good variety and size. The crop was somewhat damaged by the recent heavy rains. This year's acreage is only an earnest of what will follow next year.

Dundarroch is a central shipping point, being on the Aberdeen & Rockfish railroad, 20 miles from the S. A. L. at Aberdeen and 20 miles from Fayetteville on the A. C. L. Cotton in this section is greatly damaged by the rains.

THE natives of Cuba find relief from the parching heat of their tropical sun in cool, refreshing fruit juice beverages of various kinds.

But above all others, the most favored thirst-quenching drink is the juice of ripe, freshly crushed pineapples—picked at the moment of their most tempting flavor.

Repeated attempts have been made to preserve and bottle the sweet juice of ripe pineapples for the American market. But the juice almost invariably spoils or is tainted by artificial preservatives.

Now, by a new solating process, controlled and operated exclusively by the Pin ap a Company, the luscious juice of ripe Spanish Red pineapples is preserved—without preservatives of any kind—and the full, true flavor is retained.

Pin ap a—pure, solated juice of Spanish Red pineapples, cane sugar, and sparkling carbonated water—is offered to you in bottled form as a complete drink. It is ready to serve—you don't have to add anything. It's a cool, sparkling thirst-quencher with body bouquet. Remember the name—

FANTASTIC SUMMER DANCE FROCKS

By Hester Winthrop

A Pruicet Frock of White and Silver has an Oddly Draped Skirt and the New Fitted Boned Basque

The Little Train of Callot that Drags Below the Short Skirt. Turquoise and Silver Brocade and Silver Lace

The Loveliest Summer Dance Frock is all Tulle Flounces with a Pale Blue Silk Bodice Mostly at the Front

Gold Leaves Fluttering on Yellow Tulle and a Paler Yellow Skirt of Satin Distended by Cordings

New French Frocks are Hooped at the Hips Only. Pink Satin Silver Embroidered Chiffon and Pink Roses are Combined Here

Tulle of Spotless White, Pearls and Silver Lace Achieve the Ideal Summer Party Frock - Black Evening Gowns Particularly Distinguished - Party Petticoats With Hoops.

OF all costumes the dance frock lends itself most perfectly to flaring, billowy lines of the silhouette. So it is at the present moment that dance frocks are at their loveliest. There is positively no limit to the extent a dance frock may go in the way of flare; eight, ten, even fifteen yards it may measure around the hem, if one includes all the points, petal edges and floating squares of fabric that often go to make up this season's skirt drapery. Yards and yards of tulle, pleated perhaps in overlapping flounces, are used for one skirt; many squares of chiffon, caught to the waistband by one point and floating loosely in filmy drapery, for another skirt. In each case there is a "drop" of net or tulle between the outer skirt and the foundation of silk so that the frock may have the airy, semi-transparent effect now desirable. Frequently the foundation itself is of diaphanous fabric, shirred over light hoops of featherbone tubing, a flounce of lace falling softly around the ankles and showing beneath the billowy outer skirt.

Visible Dancing Petticoats.

There is quite a fancy, in Paris, for skirts that are tucked up, apparently, to reveal lace petticoats beneath. Of course the petticoat is really a foundation skirt edged with lace, and part of the frock itself, but the effect is the same. Flowered silks and voiles are used for these tucked up skirts which are panniered and puffed at the hip, or caught up with rosebuds at the knee, the lace "petticoat" beneath showing all around or in sections at either side. This effect is observable in the white and silver Priucet dance frock, though the skirt in this instance is tucked up at the hem instead of at knee or hip. This is really a very long skirt and would sweep the floor were it not caught up in festoons at six points, giving the edge a wavy outline. Under the skirt is a foundation skirt of net, distended with featherbone and finished with a flounce of point d'Alencon which shows, petticoat-wise in the dance. There is another important style feature in this Priucet frock; the tight-fitting, pointed bodice which extends below the waistband. Nothing is quite so smart just now as this close little evening bodice in combination with a flaring, fluttering skirt. The frock under consideration is all white with silver gleams—white taffeta with delicate silver thread embroidery. The skirt is gathered over the hips and at the back, and the gathers are so evenly distributed that they give the effect of tiny pleats. The square decolletage and absolute absence of sleeves are also fashionable features.

A dainty little dance frock just completed for Bar Harbor wear, has this fitted, pointed bodice with an 1830 decolletage—almost falling off at the shoulders. But the rounded out neck is partly filled in with a tulle tucker and little puffed tulle sleeves are set in the armholes. This 1830 bodice is of lilac taffeta and has no less than eight seams, each corded and each stayed with featherbone so that the little bodice fits like the paper on the wall. But the skirt—ah, that billows and flares if you please! Of lilac and white printed chiffon it is, tucked up below the hip with many little nosegays of purple flowers and distended by a monstrous hoop run through a drop petticoat of white net. This petticoat has a deep silver lace flounce which shows four inches of itself below the tucked up drapery. High-heeled dancing slippers of pale lilac glazed kid and silk stockings in the same shade will accompany this frock.

Kid Slippers Favored This Year.

Fashion is turning from satin dancing slippers to kid ones this summer and certainly the new slippers of soft, glazed kid, are a deal more comfortable than satin ones which never give real comfort unless one purchases them somewhat too large to fit the foot neatly. The glazed kid slipper clings to the foot like an eelskin and one is conscious of it no more than of the skin itself. Since one may obtain glazed kid dancing slippers in almost any shade desired—or even have them dyed to order—there is good reason for their popularity. Bronze dancing slippers and silver slippers come in for their share of popularity also. With an all-black evening frock the only possible slippers are of course black satin ones, or black patent leather models of distinct slipper form and not suggesting pumps.

Slippers and stockings are very conspicuous on the dancing floor just now because of the shortness of skirts, and though there is a decided tendency in Paris to lengthen skirts a little, the increased length has not yet reached the ankle. The pink satin and silver frock pictured today, a Doucet model, gives the correct length for dancing skirts in Paris at the moment. The turquoise and silver frock is about the same length. This frock is by Callot and one observes that Callot has not forgotten the inevitable little train that this house loves to add to even dance frocks. The longest skirt on today's page is the one made of tulle flounces, but perhaps this couturiere salved his conscience, after slipping away more than a conventional amount of bodice, by adding extra material to the skirt. In any case this is a very likable frock for dancing on a summer's night. The tulle flounces, mounted on a tulle skirt, with a hooped net foundation skirt beneath, should be light as a feather to dance in, and whatever else it is, the bodice should certainly prove cool! The rather daring decolletage, however, is only at the back, the surpliced fronts having a modest V cut. Each front, at the waistline appears to escape below a flat bow of blue velvet in a riot of cascade drapery which tumbles down the side of the tulle skirt. Did I mention that the bodice is of shimmering pale blue silk with little silver brocaded figures? Featherbone is inserted in the seams to give a trim-waisted effect at the front and under the arms. The almost bare simplicity of the sleeve cut is an interesting detail.

Silver Gleams Everywhere.

So much silver on evening costumes has a moonlight effect in a softly illumined room. There are silver laces, silver-embroidered nets and chiffons, silver brocaded silks, silver roses, silver tissues to slip beneath filmy fabrics and lend an indescribable shimmer and sheen. Two very lovely dance frocks with silver glints are pictured; the blue model with a train from the house of Callot Soeurs, and a delectable pink and silver debutante frock with a saucy farthingale hoop at the hip. This model, as has been said, is by Doucet. The petticoat of silver-embroidered pink chiffon falls over one of silver net and in the latter is the farthingale hoop, made of featherbone tubing run through shirred casings on each side of the skirt. The pannier drapery is of pink satin in ombre shadings, light to dark pink. At one side the drapery is caught up with pink satin carnations. The satin bodice is caught to a transparent yoke of flesh pink net which is outlined with pearl beads. Rather ingenious is the arrangement of circular satin bands at the waistline, which suggests the 1830 bodice, overlapping the skirt.

The turquoise and silver frock by Callot is even more lovely. Silver lace is generously used with the rich silver and turquoise brocaded satin and under the lace skirt is a shorter skirt of white chiffon. Note how the skirt draperies slope downward toward the back to blend with the line of the little train which is quite separate from the skirt itself, dragging from the waistline. This Callot frock has also, you perceive, the 1830 bodice, sloped off at the shoulders and boned at the point in front. Silver slippers and white silk stockings accompany this frock; glazed kid slippers in pale pink with stockings to match, the Doucet frock.

For a brown-eyed young woman, surely, is the gold and yellow dance frock which comes last on the list for description. This frock would be lovely, also, in pale blue and silver, or in pink and silver; but somehow in gold and pale yellow it seems to have a distinctive and unmatchable character. The skirt, of daffodil yellow taffeta, is distended by two rows of featherbone cording run into the silk at the foot. The girdle is of the daffodil taffeta and also the puff below the girdle—the latter drawn tightly and rather high about the waist to give the indispensable effect of trimness. From the girdle escape floating ends of gold net on which gold leaves drift carelessly. Over a bodice made of gold leaves, gold net is drawn up over the shoulders. An under bodice and the short sleeves are of pale daffodil tulle.

White Frocks With Pearls, Black Ones With Jet.

Both white dance frocks and black dance frocks are fashionable this summer—black ones particularly so, though perhaps this only appears to be the case, since one black evening frock stands out conspicuously in a room full of white or pastel colored frocks. Doeuillet makes entrancingly lovely white frocks which are coveted by debutantes and dowager alike. For a debutante, however, is a little Doeuillet frock of white tulle embroidered with pearls and outlined at hem and decolletage with pearls. The girdle is made of three strands of pearls. Underneath is a skirt of silver tissue and three pink rosebuds nestle in the corsage. Equally compelling a black Doeuillet dance frock; the skirt and narrow, dragging train from the waist, of black satin, the bodice of white lace darned with black and silver threads. No sleeves at all has this gown but shoulder straps of jet beads continue in long loops that fall below the waist at front and back of the costume.

PALE PURPLE ON THE DINING TABLE.

SHALLOW flower dishes of pale purple porcelain are among the late things for the dining table. The decorations for these include turtles, also of pale purple, to be used as flower-holders, purple birds and even purple butterflies. While the good taste of some of these adornments may be questioned, the dishes themselves, especially when filled with golden narcissi and fuzzy pussy willows, are charming things and give a lovely color to the feast.

The Final Touch-- A Tulle Neck Ruff

FAIRY trifles indeed are fluffy tulle neck fixings, but their value as a dress accessory is immeasurable. A 12-inch strip of pleated malines that weighs practically nothing in the hand, has a style value—around the throat—which can lift a whole costume to distinction. One wears one's second best tailored suit and a simple little hat; and is insignificant. Add a fresh, crisp tulle neck ruff and presto! one becomes distinctive and smart in the twinkling of an eye. To the neck ruff add a knowingly draped new veil, irreproachable new gloves and the last word in buttoned footwear of soft, glazed kid, with French heels; and one's costume will pass muster anywhere.

For some reason or other a neck ruff instantly imparts a suggestion of formality to the costume. It is not suitable for wear with a sport suit, or a linen morning frock, or rainy-day attire. It lends an aura of festivity and formality to its wearer and implies an occasion of a fete nature—a social nature. One would not, for instance, don an airy tulle neck ruff with a business costume if workaday affairs were the order of the moment.

These perishable bits of chic are sadly expensive in the shops, but the mere materials for the making do not cost excessively and a little patience combined with an imitative eye is all that is needed to evolve a very satisfactory neck fixing at home. The cape ruff will perhaps require more than a little patience, and a good deal of pleated malines must be purchased to make the rows of frilling, but when the ruff is finished one will have an accessory of incalculable value to lend distinction to summer tailleurs and frocks.

Colored neck ruffs are being worn this season as well as black ones and white ones, but the airy black ruff seems always the smartest, whatever the general color of the costume. Even with white costumes, black tulle neck ruffs are indescribably chic.

Taupe ruffs are very becoming to women with a good deal of color, but the gray tulle neck ruff is a dangerous proposition against the face unless one is young, without tired lines about eyes or mouth. Navy blue tulle ruffs are usually very becoming in conjunction with costumes of the same color—but be very sure the colors are perfectly matched or the ruff may spoil everything. To women with white hair, navy blue neckruffs seem especially flattering. There are occasions upon which one may wear a green tulle neck ruff with impunity, but the rest of the costume must be strikingly chic—and preferably black—to warrant this daring. The same rule applies to neck ruffs of cerise, orange or other vivid shades. They are worn; but they are worn successfully only by a few women who know color values and who are able to dress dashingly without being bizarre. The average woman will wisely confine herself to a black or white neck ruff, or a taupe or navy blue one if she must have color next her face.

The size and shape of the ruff should be adjusted to the requirements of the wearer. A woman with a long, slender neck may wear as tall a ruff as she fancies; the short-necked woman must be more careful. Even a short neck can stand a high ruff if the shoulders are sloping. The woman with square, high shoulders, especially if her figure be not very tall, should leave fluffy neck frills alone for they will certainly cut off her height and give her a thick, clumsy appearance.

Black malines over white makes an attractive ruff for wear with a black and white striped tailored suit, or one in gunmetal tones. Gray over white is also a pleasing combination. The two strips of malines should be of equal length and breadth, both materials being taken up together in each pleat. First there is a pleating of black; next pleating of white (used double); then comes a narrow gathered strip of black (also double) and through this runs the twisted black satin ribbon which "stays" the ruff at the center. The ribbon is knotted into a bow at each end and under the bow the ruff fastens with a snap button, the two bows coming together to make one rosette which may be worn under one ear or even at the back.

A becoming affair of white tulle and black ribbon that clever fingers can build at home.

A cape collar and ruff of black maline pleatings with a crisp ribbon bow at the back.

The foundation of every ruche of this sort is a light stiffening fabric which keeps the ruche crisply in position around the throat. A wire or hoop of any kind should never be used in a tulle neck ruff.

The cape-ruff on the contrary, will be much smarter for an invisible featherbone brace at the back of the collar portion which must stand up to make a background for the face. One handsome model is made of black tulle, or malines, the cape portion cut in circular effect so that it ripples at the back. Narrow, pleated black tulle frills are sewed to this circular cape, across in rows, and all around the edge. The collar is made of the narrow pleatings overlapping each other. The collar ruff of white tulle, with black ribbon ties is an excellent model for a short-necked woman.

COTTON MARKET NARROW

However, General Tone is Steady—List Closed at Two Points Advance to Two Points Decline.

New York, July 21.—A lack of any definite change in the character of crop news promoted a narrow market in cotton today, but the general tone was steady, October ranging from 12.90 to 12.96 and closing at 12.94. The general list closed steady at two points advance to two points decline.

The opening was steady and unchanged to three points lower As the day progressed there was a disposition nto take stock of the damage news from the Eastern belt and October gradually worked up. From 12.90 to around 12.94, where it remained most of the afternoon. Outside interest was light and unfavorable eastern belt news was largely offset by Texas and Oklahoma conditions. New bales have already been received from sections in Southern Texas and English buyers are already on the spot in anticipation of an early movement. Spots were generally unchanged and according to accounts received here were not being offered at any concessions.

WEEK'S REVIEW IN COTTON

Very Little Development in Speculative Activity—Market Under Depression.

New York, July 21.—The week in cotton developed very little new in the way of speculative activity and showed such a conflict of opinion regarding the progress of the crop, particularly east of the Mississippi river, that the trade was very much mixed as to actual conditions, although Wall Street and many of the local operators took the position that conditions were not so bad as reported. These interests were the principal sellers of the week and much of the downward tendency which developed in the market was due to preasure of this sort, together with the fact that buying orders from the southeast were entirely disproportionate to the amount of bull news from that quarter.

Towards the close of the week a little more attention was paid to the reports of damage but they failed to exert much stimulating effect upon the market as at the same time good rains in some of the largest producing counties in Texas and in Oklahoma, coupled with a lowering of the recent high temperatures in both states, furnished an offsetting influence. The chief apprehension concerning the eastern crop now seems to be over the question of boll weevil and shedding.

It is featred that rains have multiplied the former, while any return of hot, dry weather, will presumably exert an unfavorable effect after the prolonged rains and magnify the effects of the non-use of fertilizer. It is said that cotton has already begun to move in southern Texas, and that English buyers are on hand waiting for a general movement to begin.

Spot people here have reported no weapening by holders in the South of the old crop and it is expected that owing to the rains in the east and the new crop there will move later than usual. A private crop report issued during the week, made the condition 78, or a drop of 2.6 points in two weeks. A tropical storm scare early in the week proved to be unfounded as the hurricane moved up the coast without touching the belt, although showery conditions were still present over the Eastern belt at the end of the week.

SOME GAINS IN STOCKS

Specialties Respond to More Favorable Foreign Trade Conditions—Marines Regain Losses.

New York, July 21.—The stock market today was largely a repetition of the sessions immediately preceding. Special stocks, mainly munitions, industrial equipments and motors, were elevated to variably higher levels and metals responded to more favorable foreign trade conditions.

The only striking exception to the previous day's irregular trend was shipping shares. Marines regained much of the severe loss which followed the announcement of the heavy British war tax, with further activity in United Fruit and Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, the latter coming within a small fraction of its high quotation.

Rails were inactive and mostly heavy. Coalers and Eastern trunk lines yielded moderate fractions and in senational issues, including Pacifics, registered similar declines on small offerings. United States steel was subordinate in activity to the shipping stocks, Crucible Steel and Baldwin Locomotive and hovered near yesterday's close.

Wall Street is of the opinion that no extra dividend disbursement will be declared for the second quarter, notwithstanding extraordinary earnings. Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value $1,670,000. United States bonds unchanged on call.

DUN'S REVIEW OF BUSINESS

Many More Points of Activity Than of Dullness—Foreign Demands.

New York, July 21.—Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

"Contrary to the usual experience at this season there are many more points of activity than of dullness in the general situation. Business continues remarkably full during the period when it ordinarily shows the greatest shrinkage, current reports adding to the accumulation of superlatives with regard to trade, industry and transportation. While in some important lines, notably in steel and leather, foreign demands are again the overshadowing feature, it is not because any lack of confidence that domestic buying has abated. Many interests here, having already covered their requirements well ahead, naturally proceed more slowly in extending commitments further, and the spirit of conservatism manifest throughout the country is most reassuring in its bearing on the future. To a certain extent crop uncertainties are cause for resitancy, but on the whole agriculture progresses favorably, though recent storms in the South have been somewhat detrimental to cotton.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

Prices Move Within Narrow Margin. Market Closed at Net Decline.

New Orleans, July 21.—Influences in the cotton market today about balanced, with the result that prices moved within a narrow range. The most active months at their highest were 1 to 3 points over yesterday's close and at their lowest were 4 to 5 points under. The close was steady at a net decline of 1 to 2 points. Good cables caused momentary steadiness on the opening after which selling increased on the rains and lower temperatures in the western belt. Detailed reports from the weather bureau showed almost general rains over a large part of the cotton region east of the Mississippi river and as the session progressed apprehension increased. After the decline of half a dozen points, the market recovered and at noon was about at yesterday's closing levels. Bearish traders made much of telegrams from Texas telling of the beginning of picking at several points but no selling power developed.

Closing bid: August 12.69; October 12.77; December 12.96; January 12.99; March 13.18.

MYSTERY OF DEATH OF MRS. KEISTER DEEPENED

Her Charred Body Found in Attic of Her Fire-Swept Home

Her Husband, Z. E. Keister, Norfolk Real Estate Dealer, Attempted Suicide—Authorities Making Investigation.

Norfolk, Va., July 21.—The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Estelle Osborne Keister, whose charred body was found in the fire-swept attic of her home yesterday morning, an the attempted suicide of her husband, Z. E. Keister, a real estate dealer, was deepened today by the investigations, conducted by the police department and coroner.

The fact the building was fired in two places, in the attic and on the first floor, was seemingly established today by the investigations of the fire department and police. The theory of Keister's friends is that the oil-soaked piece of carpet found near the body of his wife, was the result of leaking oil stoves, was explained. The two stoves in the attic were found to be some distance from where the piece of carpet was found. A stick of kindling wood, believed to be blood stained and matted with haid, has been submitted to an expert chemist for analysis. Keister's relatives explain the presence of a small pile of splint wood in the attic by declaring it was stowed there, for use in open grates. The fact that the bed room doors were found locked on the second floor is explained by the declaration that they are equipped with spring locks.

Major Kiser, chief of police, Coroner Knight and Commonwealth Attorney Shackleford tonight declined to discuss the tragedy. In many quarters the belief grows stronger that it was a murder and attempted suicide when plans to cremate the body of the woman miscarried.

DEATH TOLL IN THE UPPER YADKIN REGION INCREASES

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 21.—As reports come in from cut-off districts along the upper waters of the Yadkin river, the death toll increases, the number now being 17. A report from North Wilkesboro tonight tells of the death of Montague Haynes and his entire family of seven in the upper waters of Reddies river, a tributary of the Yadkin. A water spout struck just above his home, annihilating it and the family. A landslide on the south side of the Brushy mountain is reported to have covered a home and killed four children ,the man and his wife alone escaping.

Mayor O. B. Eaton, of Winston-Salem, tonight called a mass meeting of citizens Sunday evening for raising funds for the relief of suffering from lack of food and clothing in the isolated districts of Wilkes and Ashe counties.

Red Cross volunteers are raising relief funds here. The Journal also started a fund tonight, the contributions received reaching $1200. A relief committee has been appointed in Wilkesboro to superintend the distribution of funds there.

for Southern Cotton." Mr. C. L. Chandler, South American agent for the Southern Railway, told of the tremendous possibilities that South America holds for the Southern cotton manufacturer. These speakers were extended a rising vote of thanks for the addresses made by them.

Today's Programme.

The closing session of the convention will be held this morning when addresses will be made by Mr. E. A. Groff, manager of the Foreign Trade Department of the National City Bank of New York, who will speak on "Foreign Trade Finances" and by Hon. James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, of Washington, D. C., who will speak on "Industry and Legislation." Prof. Thomas Nelson, of the North Carolina A. & M. College, will speak on the "Relation of Textile Schools to Mills."

At 12:30 o'clock following the election of officers and the transaction of other business, all members and guests will be taken in automobiles to Cedar Point on Masonboro Sound for a barbecue, which will be given by the Wilmington Rotary Club. Leaving Cedar Point at 2:15 for Wilmington, the "Gateway Port of North Carolina," the members and their friends will board the Seminole at 3 o'clock for a run down the historic Cape Fear river to Fort Caswell.

Col. Thompson's Address.

"The year just closing has been full of perplexities, but every mill manager must be gratified when he compares conditions now with those existing a year ago," Col. Alf. A. Thompson declared in his annual address. "Then the head of every mill," said he, "felt that to fly to the wilderness offered the only way of escape from the storms of coming calamity. Now he can take a few days off, bathe in the waves of the Atlantic, back in the sun on ocean beach and revel amid the charms of Wilmington and Wrightsville."

Colonel Thompson made a number of recommendations, which he had previously outlined in a letter to the cotton manufacturers of the State. He thought that the president should serve but one year and that an active compaign for new members should be pushed during the last half of the year in order that every mill may be enrolled before the first of next January.

Other recommendations were that a publicity campaign be conducted for the purpose of showing what cotton mills have voluntarily done for the education and welfare of employes, the establishment of traffic and purchasing departments, that standard systems of accounting be considered by a special committee, that closer relations be established between this and other associations of manufacturers, that a spirit of co-operation be encouraged between the North Carolina association and the National government for the purpose of promoting foreign trade and that a like spirit of co-operation be promoted between the members, the railroad companies and the Southern ports with a view to increasing port facilities.

The importance of co-operation was emphasized by President Thompson, who declared that he believed that with concerted effort, this country can export at least 20 per cent. of all cotton mill products, and if this is done, over production, he said, will be impossible and hard times will soon be only a memory. He pointed out that both home and foreign competition compel a careful scrutiny of every item of cost entering into the making and selling of products. The trend of commerce, he continued, is towards reducing the cost between the producer and the consumer and the first thing to be considered in this connection is the elimination of abuses and the second to simplify the terms, getting as near a cash basis as possible, and in the last place by co-operation to reduce the selling costs.

False Impressions Made.

Secretary Hudson C. Millar in his annual report spoke of the different varieties of publicity that are being turned loose in all parts of the country in newspapers, tracts, buletins and magazines, giving many stories of the bodies, lives and the very souls of little children being ground out and crushed by the great cotton manufacturer. Not only have newspapers, magazine articles, tracts and bulletins, said he, imposed false impressions on the public but some organizations create false sympathy by sending agents through the states throwing pictures on screens, telling pathetic, appealing stories, which almost wring the heart of the credulous public. Fake pictures, warped sories, he told the manufacturers, create false impressions on the public, even thouh they are unfounded.

"You need to wake up," declared. "The mill men and employes of the South are asleep at the switch, and public opinion, the most important factor in the forces of the world, is going on the wrong track. No other industry in the world and no other manufacturers, except a few specialities, carry on the welfare work or look after its people as do the cotton mills. Many cotton mills have carried this week to a high degree."

Secretary Millar urged the establishing of a traffic department, which can save many dollars by getting rate adjustments. The need of an efficient purchasing depratment was also shown. In conclusion he urged closer co-operation.

Industrial Hygiene.

Dr. W. S. Rankin, secretary of the State Board of Health, in a very practical and helpful way discussed the important question of "Industrial Hygiene eand Dividends." "While there is in existence enough material evidence of your purely humanitarian interest in the mill operatives to encourage me to present the subject to you from that angle," Dr. Rankin told the manufacturers, "my decision to deal with the health problem of mill operatives from the business angle, therefore, is not due to any lack of confidence in the higher interest of the mill owner in the mill operative."

For business considerations, said Dr. Rankin, a mill industry may be divided into two factors, an inanimate and an animate factor, the first being the land, the shelter and the machinery, while the second is the milll operative. The latter factor is not bought nor owned by the mill owners but is rented for variable periods of time from society. When the animate factor is worn, broken or physically depreciated, it is thrown back on society, and the loss falls not on the owner of the factory but on society.

Pointing out the fact that for years it has been customary for mill owners to overhaul their machinery, the speaker made a plea that the same care be taken to see that the animate factor is also kept in first class condition. The problem of human conservation, like the problem of conserving machines, he pointed out, has to do with all the people at all levels of efficiency. After all the physical efficiency of machinery is dependent upon the physical efficiency of men, he said.

Dr. Rankin recommended as important, if not essential, places in a well organized department of industrial hygience the following remedies: Medical examination of employes, mill dispensaries for prompt treatment of accidents, sanitation of mill villages and settlements, health education.

Cotton World Markets.

"World Markets for Southern Cotton" was the subject of a very illuminating address by Mr. W. A. Graham Clark, commercial agent of the United States Department of Commerce, who pointed out that as a result of the great conflict in Europe, American cotton mills have succeeded to a rich heritage of foreign trade. This opportunity is of especial interest to Southern manufacturers as the larger part of this country's export trade originates in the South. With an export of some $112,000,000 for the last fiscal year, said Mr. Clark, the United States now ranks second only to the United Kingdom in the cotton goods market of the world. This is a position to which we have attained only under abnormal conditions but it is one to which we are normally entitled by reason of the extent and efficiency of our industry.

The United Kingdom is the one great competitor, Mr. Clark told the manufacturers. The cotton mills of that country regularly export 90 per cent. of their products, two-thirds of which goes to Asia. The British cotton industry, said he, today is not running at much over 80 per cent. of its capacity, this being partly due to the decreased markets but more particularly because of the shortage of labor on account of the war.

Germany next to Great Britain has been the largest exporter of manufactures of cotton attaining a record export of $136,000,000 in 1913. Mr. Clark stated that taken altogether Germany has had little success in competing with England in the export of cotton cloths and its exports have been mainly in the line of specialties.

France has ranked third in the export of cotton manufactures, exporting to the amount of $75,000,000 in 1913. Continuing, Mr. Clark discussed the cotton manufacturing and the exports made by Switzerland, Italy, British India, Russia, Austria, Belgium, Spain, showing that as a result of the war the exports of cotton goods from the United Kingdom have greatly decreased, Germany and Austria and Belgium are doing no export trade while France and Holland and Russia are tied up with war orders at home. The speaker discussed the future prospects of the trade, showing how at the close of the war this country will be running at full time at the highest rate of efficiency while the cotton industry will be in a disorganized condition in Europe.

South American Trade.

Mr. C. L. Chandler, South American agent for the Southern Railway, of Chattanooga, Tenn., made the closing address of the afternoon. In the short space of some 20 minutes he said much that provoked thought. He showed himself to be thoroughly at home with his subject by pointing out the connecting links between Wilmington and South America. It was in 1783, he stated ,that a great South American patriot had spent some time in Wilmington. It was on September 4, 1815, that the first ship from American shores to South America sailed from Wilmington with a cargo of naval stores and other materials for Buenos Ayres. William A. Graham, one of the greatest of the five secretaries of the navy that North Carolina has furnished, did much to promote the South American trade as did the late Thomas Jackson Jarvis when he was governor of North Carolina. The speaker also spoke of the splendid work being done by Commissioner of Labor and Printing M. L. Shipman.

Mr. Chandler declared that there is an immense amount of business to be had in South America for the asking. The people of that country have no conception, he declared, as to the extent of the cotton industry in this country. Mobile is the only Southern port that sends ships direct to Buenos Ayres on regular runs. Rates from North Carolina points via this port are cheaper, said he, than to ship via New York. The Southern Railway in the last few years has been encouraging the establishing of dyeing and bleaching plants and is also offering reduced rates to South American ports.

The speaker took a shot at the kind of education that American boys are given, declaring that while we talk much about education that we are a silly ignorant lot when it comes to training for business in South America. He paid high tribute to Dr. Edward Kidder Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, for the steps he is taking to have young men trained there for business. Mr. Chandler declared that recently a firm wanted a young man who could speak Spanish to go to South America and it was impossible to find a single one in the South and they finally had to get an Englishman from Manchester.

The pompier races were not held, owing to the absence of the Asheville company, and the prize money for this was put up for races by non winners in other contests. In this the first money was divided between Atlantic No. 1 and Burlington on a tie of 29 that it was agreed should not be run over. Mooresville made a score of 31 4-5 and East Spencer 36, while Statesville drew a goose egg through failure at the nozzle.

BRITISH IN SINGLE BATTLE LOSE 2,000

that its (the regiment's) entire losses in recent weeks until yesterday were happily less than 500 men. Therefore its loss, however deplorable, in itself amounts to only a quarter of the English allegation."

The British bureau appends a note to the German communication pointing out with reference to the latter portion that the Poldhu message mentioned the 190th regiment and not the 119th which is the Wurtemburg regiment stationed on the Ypres salient, "where it has had no serious fight during the last four weeks."

"If in that time," the press bureau continues, "it lost 500 men, this is a gratifying result. The losses of the 190th regiment therefore remain unchallenged."

CHILD LABOR BILL GETS INTO NAVAL BILL DEBATE

Hardwick Says Evidently Republicans Propose to Play Politics.

Washington, July 21.—The child labor bill, which President Wilson is urging for passage before adjournment of Congress, got into the Naval bill debate in the Senate today when Senator Hardwick, of Georgia, charged that it evidently was the purpose of the Republicans of the Senate to play party politics with this great measure.

He called atention to Republican Leader Gallinger's statement that Republican senators were eager for its early passage.

"I had no such purpose," Senator Gallinger declared. "I made the statement because the people of the country want the bill passed."

Senator Hardwick declared the measure was unconstitutional and recalled that Senator Gallinger had said so last February. Mr. Gallinger replied he still had doubt about its constitutionality but was willing to vote for it and leave the question to the courst.

"There has been a great deal of change of mind about the constitutionality of this bill," said Senator Borah, Republican. "The leader of the Georgia senator's own party has changed his mind on that."
